CURTIS GRILLED AGAIN; MISSING ON KIDNAP AND RANSOM NIGHTS

Today

Rhinoceros Horn, Elk Tooth
Russia Trades and Reads
Prayer for Better Times
Who Understands Money?

—By Arthur Brisbane—

WE READ WITH suitable disdain that it is necessary to stop the killing of rhinoceros. Without protection they would soon become extinct. Natives hunt them for the horns, to which they attribute "powerful magic."

We say to ourselves, "How silly to kill such gigantic animals merely to get magic horns, when there is no magic."

Then we remember that tens of thousands of beautiful elk have been slaughtered by men that simply wanted to get their teeth.

Not all the savages are in Africa.

Russia, realizing that commerce is something more than a "mere capitalistic invention for the enrichment of the few," allows peasants to sell grain and meat. Markets are organized and Russia is pleased. There is not much pleasure in having rubles if you can't spend them, or in raising pigs if you can't sell pork. That may not be perfect "Communism," but that is how human beings are made.

This change in Russia's policy would seem to indicate success for Stalin.

Various minds interpret in various ways the news that comes out of Russia, but there cannot be two opinions about this:

Russia has three times as many newspapers today as she had under the czars. And 10 times as many newspaper readers.

Pravda, published in Moscow, official organ of the Communist party, has a daily circulation of 2,200,000. Izvestia, another official organ, sells two million.

The Peasants' Gazette, published every three days, circulates three million copies, and has, in addition, 15 regional editions.

There is no free press in Russia, which means that there is no reliable safety valve. But, at least, the people are reading.

Today the Osservatore Romano, in Rome, printed the Pope's encyclical asking the world to pray for relief from "today's sad condition of the human race." Summaries of the encyclical were broadcast in various languages. It recommended world prayer, especially in June, a month consecrated to the "Sacred Heart."

War against religion, which is savage in Russia, persistent in Spain and Mexico, continues in the last country. The governor of Michoacan announces that the number of priests is limited to 33 in the enormous territory over which he rules, and no bishop, archbishop or delegate can officiate religiously. The new law excludes from active religious service the papal legate, Archbishop Leopoldo Ruiz Y Flores, who is from Michoacan, cannot officiate in his own state.

Mr. Mills, Secretary of the Treasury, and Eugene Meyer, Jr., head of the federal reserve board, agree that it would be a mistake to order the federal reserve to keep pouring out money until the dollar's purchasing power comes down to the 1926 level.

The government couldn't restore 1926 prices if it tried, Mr. Mills says. The dollar would be made cheap without necessarily making products more valuable.

Mr. Mills and Mr. Meyer, both able financiers, agree that you can cut down the value of the dollar but you can't put up the value of products.

The public begins to think that nobody really knows anything about money, especially when trouble comes.

An individual known as one of the "Norfolk, Va., Negotiators," who caused Col. Lindbergh much trouble and anxiety in an attempt to recover his child, has confessed that his story concerning the baby was a hoax, and that he had trumped up a yarn about a "mysterious boat at sea, and various people aboard.

There may be no law to punish one guilty of such a hoax, but there should be such a law.

More interesting and important than the hoax perpetrated by what was, perhaps, a diseased mind, is the fact that in another direction Col. Lindbergh was persuaded to pay $50,000 to an individual whom he never saw, supposed to be located in a graveyard. Whoever got the money kept it, and sent Col. Lindbergh on a wild goose chase that produced no results. That "incident" should be investigated thoroughly.

Advertising is a great power. Newspapers possess it, but DON'T USE IT. They advertise everything except themselves, and the value of advertising, which is the greatest force for restoration of prosperity.

Z. Robert Clary of the Glendale News Press, Glendale, Calif., says:

"If newspapers would devote half as much space to advertising themselves as they are now devoting to advertising the depression they would do well."

A sound suggestion.

CALLS ON WORLD TO ATONE

His Holiness, Pope Pius XI, as he appeared today while the microphone in Vatican City radio station carried his encyclical, calling the entire world to prayer, penance and mortification to save itself from the "peril of terrorism and anarchy," onto the air in five languages.

Pope Warns World of Anarchy and Greed

Vatican City, May 18—Blaming "exaggerated nationalism" and social orders such as Communism for the world's economic ails, Pope Pius XI today addressed an encyclical to the world calling for united opposition to these "causes."

The Pontiff ordered eight days of special prayers in Catholic churches of the world, beginning May 26, and recommended abstention from amusements during the period as a measure of atonement.

The Pope's message was broadcast over the radio in five different languages.

"Inspired by Christ's charity," Pope Pius said in the encyclical, "I addressed an appeal to the world on October 2, 1931, to help alleviate the terrible effects of the world economic crisis.

SUFFERING GAINS

"Though the response was generous, sufferings have increased and unemployment has grown, thus supplying a pretext for subversive parties to launch propaganda for a drive threatening public order everywhere and increasing the danger of terrorism and anarchy.

"This induces me to appeal to the world to oppose with its whole strength the ills endangering humanity—worse still, threatening it.

"Never before has the world, both spiritually and materially, been so restless as it is now. The whole of humanity is being crippled by a financial and economic crisis which is leaving no nation, no society, and no family unaffected, either directly or indirectly.

"Even those few who seemed to hold in their hands with untold riches the world's fate, and

ELY APPOINTS GOLDBERG TO BROOKS JOB

Governor in Surprise Move to Oust Parole Board Head; Webber in New Post

In a surprise move to oust Frank A. Brooks as chairman of the State Board of Parole, Gov. Ely today nominated Louis Goldberg for that post a short time after Abraham Webber was sworn in as Goldberg's successor on the Public Utilities Commission.

Three other nominees for the parole chairmanship have been rejected by the governor's council. Those rejected were Thomas H. Boynton, former attorney-general; Richard Olney and Stanley Wisnoski.

The move was as much of a surprise today as was the naming of Webber to succeed Goldberg last week.

In view fo the nomination, State House observers sensed that last week's move was in preparation for the move today.

No action is expected on the Goldberg appointment until the regular weekly meeting of the council next Wednesday.

Chill Temperatures to Last Day Longer

Skies will continue cloudy today and tomorrow with a slight rise in temperature tomorrow and possible rain. The temperature dopped steadily during the night and early morning. At 10 a. m. today it was 54 degrees, 25 lower than the same hour Monday.

The wind is northwest at 10 miles an hour. Moderate westerly winds are forecast for tomorrow with indications that rains reported in Pennsylvania will be over the New England states tonight or tomorrow.

Bandits Raid Bank; Escape With $25,000

Caldwell, O., May 18 (INS)—Three young gunmen bound four employes and seven customers in the Noble County National Bank today and escaped with $25,000.

The Problem

SEE how Boston's expenses for public relief have mounted: 1930, $2,500,000; 1931, $7,000,000; 1932, at the rate of $12,000,000. And still climbing.

The Remedy

A $5,000,000,000 bond issue by the United States to build great public works, employ several million men and start the nation back to prosperity.

4 SLEUTHS AID JAFSIE HUNT

Dr. John F. Condon, the "Jafsie" of the Lindbergh kidnaping and murder mystery, today viewed hundreds of rogue's gallery photographs in Mount Vernon, N. Y., in an effort to identify one as the man to whom he says he paid $50,000 ransom money. Four detectives escorted him and sought to assist his quest. (International News Photos.)

Other Lindbergh News on Pages 2, 3, 4

Norfolk, Va., May 18 (AP)—It was learned from an authentic source today that Norfolk police have been checking the whereabouts of John Hughes Curtis on the night of March 1 when the Lindbergh baby was kidnaped and that his whereabouts at that time have not been definitely established.

Police today obtained mud scrapings from the automobile owned by Curtis to determine if possible whether any of the soil can be identified as New Jersey soil.

Mrs. Curtis, at Norfolk, said her husband was at home that night, when interrogated by police following Curtis' confession of the hoax. Police have been unable to confirm Mrs. Curtis' story and are continuing their investigation of this angle.

Chief of Police Says Curtis Is Holding Back

Chief of Police S. W. Ironmonger said today he did not believe Curtis had made a complete confession regarding his fake negotiations in the Lindbergh case and that he has withheld "something important."

Chief Ironmonger would not give any indication of the nature of the information he said he believed Curtis has withheld. The police official also refused to say whether he had learned that Curtis had associates working with him to fake the negotiations.

Curtis Also Mising When Jafsie Paid Up

The police also are endeavoring to trace Curtis' whereabouts on the night of April 2—the night on which Dr. John F. Condon ("Jafsie") tossed $50,000 of Col. Lindbergh's money over the cemetery wall in the Bronx to an emissary of the supposed kidnapers. The baby at that time had been dead for several weeks.

Preliminary investigation disclosed, police said, that Curtis was absent on one of his myste-

Put Suicide Guard on Curtis

Trenton, N. J., May 18 (INS)—Following a statement by Governor A. Harry Moore ot New Jersey that John Hughes Curtis, Norfolk shipping man, who confessed to faking a series of negotiations over the Lindbergh baby kidnaping, had twice attempted to commit suicide, Col. H. Norman Schwarzkopf of the State police today declared he knew only of one attempt by Curtis to kill himself.

"We have information from a confidential source in Norfolk that this man became involved in financial difficulties and had attempted suicide," said Schwarzkopf.

"After receiving that information we placed a guard over him 24 hours in the day for his own protection.

"He has neither ttempted suicide in Hopewell nor hd n opportunity to do so.

"He is still being detined for questioning."

Previously, Governor Moore naa said:

"Curtis attempted to commit suicide for the second time because he has been despondent over the disgrace and grief he has caused his family, Col. and Mrs. Lindbergh, and himself.

"He feels that he has wrecked the lives of his family."

Governor Moore also stated that a warrant for the arrest of Curtis had been issued and that he would be put in jail "for his own health."

JAFSIE CRIES CURTIS' HOAX RUINED ALL HIS PLANS

ONE OLD MAN AND HIS STORY OF PAYING OVER $50,000 SWINDLE MONEY ONLY CLUE LEFT

New York, May 18—Disrupted momentarily by the shattering blow of the confession by John Hughes Curtis, Norfolk, Va., boat builder, that his weird story of negotiations with the Lindbergh baby kidnapers was a cruel, heartless hoax, law enforcement agencies rallied today to continue their tenacious hunt for the abductors.

With the Curtis clues shot down like a brilliant toy balloon arrowed by an accurate bow, the police were left today with only the story of Dr. Condon and their own-found clues to hunt the baby killers.

"Jafsie" Claims Curtis Story Ruined His Efforts

"I would know the man I paid the money to—know him in a thousand," Condon said.

But the days lengthen—and the killers have not been found.

The Bronx grand jury has started its inquiry into the payment of $50,000 ransom money by another intermediary—Dr. Condon—to a man who represented himself as acting for the kidnapers. Condon himself was not called before the jury. He is to tell his story Friday.

Condon, whose negotiations for the return of the baby led him, despite his 72 years, into adventures in strange places—the silent Bronx cemetery, where he paid over the ransom money, the bay, where he took a ducking in the cold waters while seeking to renew his contact, and to journeys in the dead of night, following the lure of messages given him by a mysterious veiled woman—said the Curtis hoax had been disastrous to his own efforts.

He said that publication of a statement attributed to Curtis that Col. Lindbergh was willing to pay, through him, $100,000 ransom, had caused the kidnapers to drop their Bronx negotiations and seek greater gold through Curtis.

"All the story hasn't been told yet," said the retired schoolmaster. He indicated that he still was hopeful of leading the law to the gang that got the $50,000 ransom money—supplied by Col. Lindbergh—from him.

Schwarzkopf, in his late bulletin, declared so far no person was identified as either the stealer or slayer of the son of Col. Lindbergh.

Dr. Condon today declared he was making progress in efforts to identify the Scandinavian "John" to whom he paid the ransom money.

One cryptic statement he made was that he was shown a photograph of a relative of that mysterious person "by someone from out of town" while he was at police headquarters here recently.

In an intricate cartograph he showed interviewers, Dr. Condon charted the steps he took in the kidnap negotiations. From a drawn picture in the corner of a chart radiated ink lines captioned cryptically.

Following Curtis' confession, the widespread search by Coast Guards for the supposed kidnap boat he mentioned was ordered abandoned.

A Monterey, Mexico report that Harry Fleischer, the much-discussed Detroit "Purple" gangster, had been arrested and had confessed the kidnaping, was quickly denied by police at Monterey and by federal authorities at Mexico City.

Curtis Begs Lindbergh to Forgive Him

Breaking down almost to the point of hysteria, Curtis, 45-year-old shipbuilder, the father of two children, in confessing the hoax, said financial trouble had driven him insane on the subject of money. He pleaded for Col. Lindbergh's forgiveness.

Col. Lindbergh himself was so impressed by Curtis' fantastic "negotiations" that he was with Curtis on a yacht 40 miles off Cape May, N. J., Thursday afternoon at the time his infant son's body was found in a thicket four miles from the Lindbergh estate.

In a bulletin, Col. Norman Schwarzkopf, commandant of New Jersey State police, said he had sent a telegram to the Very Rev. H. Dobson-Peacock, co-negotiator with Curtis, asking him to come to Hopewell voluntarily. Presumably Dr. Dobson-Peacock will be questioned regarding Curtis' statement that he could have stopped the hoax.

No Evidence to Show Curtis Received Money

Schwarzkopf also stated that Col. Lindbergh had made recommendation with regard to Curtis, and that police have no evidence that Curtis received money from anyone in connection with th hoax.

Col. Schwarzkopf, relating how the confession was obtained from John H. Curtis, said:

"Curtis was brought to Hopewell headquarters Thursday night the night the body was found. He was questioned all night. On Friday, he was taken to Cape May City for the purpose of checking up. On Saturday he was again questioned at Hopewell and a detailed statement taken from him. On Sunday we intentionally left him entirely alone all day long and all evening. On Monday morning we sent him to the rogues' gallery in Newark.

Unable to Lead Police to Kidnapers' House

"While he was in Newark with the investigators, he was taken over several miles of Newark streets in an effort to locate a house at which he had said he had met the kidnapers and which he said he could identify.

"He returned in the afternoon to Hopewell with the investigators and was again left entirely alone until after midnight.

"Sometime after midnight Inspector Walsh, in the presence of Lieutenant Keaton, made friendly advances to Mr. Curtis and started a game of checkers with him.

"Mr. Curtis' mind evidently was not on the game, and at the suggestion of Inspector Walsh they ttok a walk.

"The conversation was continued with him and the suggestion constantly advanced that he tell the truth. At about 1:15 a. m. (Tuesday) he said he was ready to tell the truth.

"A statement was taken from him at that time and he denied he had ever seen or checked the bills of the ransom money.

"His contention up to this time had been that he'd seen and checked against the newspaper lists a number of the bills used in the payment of the ransom.

Says Financial Troubles Drove Him Insane

"However, he insisted that the rest of the facts concerning his contacts were true and made a three-page written statement. He was taken back to the room, where the questioning was held and was further questioned by Inspector Walsh, who continued to admonish him to tell the truth.

"At approximately 4 a. m. he jumped from his chair, asked for a typewriter and chair, and in the presence of Inspector Walsh and Lieut. Keaton wrote out the confession. When Curtis jumped from his chair he threw it against the wall. He then typewrote the confession."

Explaining that he grasped at what he thought to be an opportunity to collect money from newspapers in return for his story of his kidnaping "negotiations," Curtis said:

"I honestly believe that for the last seven or eight months I have not been myself due to financial troubles . . . I became insane on the subject for the time being which caused me to create the story in its entirety which was untrue in every respect.

"I never knew such people as I named to Col. Lindbergh and they were creatures of a distorted mind. I exceedingly regret that I caused Col. Lindbergh any inconvenience and wish it were in my power to correct my wrong."

Curtis Wishes He Could Right Wrong

From Norfolk, Va., came word that Curtis had suffered a nervous breakdown when his boat corporation went into bankruptcy May 5, 1931. It was stated there, however, that despite his financial difficulties, he always had been looked up to as one of the town's leading citizens.

Curtis is being held at the Lindbergh garage for further questioning. Col. Schwarzkopf declined to state what action if any would be taken against him, but Governor A. Harry Moore of New Jersey announced:

"I believe Curtis can be held for attempting to get money under false pretenses, for hampering justice, for giving false information to federal agencies (the Coast Guard) and perhaps using the mails to defraud in connection with his pretended negotiations."

Ironically, it was with Curtis that Col. Lindbergh was at sea on a yacht in quest of a contact with the phantom kidnapers' boat on the day his infant son's body was discovered in a thicket.

As soon as word of Curtis' confession was received, Dist. Atty. Erwin Marshall of Mercer County, prosecuting authority in the Lindbergh case, rushed to the police headquarters here and immediately went into conference with Col. Schwarzkopf.

Aids Lindy Case

Charles T. Foster, who, with his dog, strolled daily over the Mt. Rose country and never saw a trace of the Lindbergh baby's body. He told police he had many times traversed the immediate vicinity from March 14 to April 15. Police are investigating the possibility that the body was not there then. (International News Photos.)

KIDNAP VICTIM HELD 8 MONTHS

Scranton, Pa., May 18 (AP)—A strange tale of being kidnaped from his home in Montoursville and held captive for eight months without apparent motive was told today by a man found bound and gagged by the roadside on the outskirts of the city.

The man who said he is J. Drew Fague, 31, justice of the peace of Montoursville and candidate for congress in 1930, disappeared from his home the night of September 17, 1931, and had not been heard from.

Uruguayan Schools Send Sympathy

Montevideo, Uruguay, May 18 (AP)—Montevideo school children have prepared an album to send to Col. and Mrs. Lindbergh as an expression of their sympathy.

Newest Hoaxer

Frank Parzych, alleged by police to be a drug addict, who "confessed" in New York that he was one of a gang of six men who kidnaped the Lindbergh baby. Today he "confessed" again, saying his first "confession" was a hoax. Police believe his latest confession that his first one was a lie.

KIDNAPED OHIO BABY FOUND

Steubenville O., May 8 (AP)—Half an hour after being stolen from his crib, two-year-old Eugene Swearingen was found behind a fence near his home, it was revealed today. His left eye was bruised.

The kidnaping followed three demands for $500 made upon his parents, who live in Warrenton, near here.

The parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Swearingen, had been watching the child closely since kidnap threat notes were received two weeks ago.

Late last night they heard a noise, which they attributed to a dog, but did not investigate immediately. When they went to the baby's crib the child was gone.

The entire village of 200 persons turned out to search and the child was found behind the fence. Officials said the child either had been struck by the kidnapers or injured when dropped.

The father told officers he had received three notes during the past two weeks demanding $500 under a threat of kidnaping the child, but being without the funds he refused the demands.

The Swearingens have six other children.

COL. LINDBERGH'S "CONTACT" BOAT

This coastwise yacht, the Cachelot, was loaned by its owner to Col. Lindbergh to use in his attempts to contact the kidnapers of his baby when John H. Curtis, Norfolk shipbuilder, led Lindbergh on a cruel wild-goose chase by his phantom negotiations.

SKIPPER AND MATE OF BOAT

Capt. Leonard L. McLain and his first mate, Alfred Bjorge, are shown in the wheelhouse of the yacht. The vessel made several cruises, both up to the Massachusetts coast and down to Virginia, following clues that proved to be but a ghoulish hoax.

Some significance is seen in the fact that this vessel, also named "Cachelot," is moored a short distance from the vessel Col. Lindbergh used. Both vessels are at present moored off Carson ave., Atlantic City. (International News Photos.)

CURTIS GRILLED ABOUT ACTIONS KIDNAP NIGHT

Describes Own Car as Kidnapers' Vehicle

The investigators here said Curtis was evidently describing his own car when he asked police to look out for a green sedan. A search here resulted in the finding of only one car of his description and this one, officers said, was his own, which they found parked at his boatbuilding plant.

In his incoherent detailed story of his "negotiations," given under questioning after the finding of the body and before his confession, Curtis declared three cars were used by the kidnapers, a blue Buick, a grey Ford and a green Chrysler sedan. He said: "They told me that the method of the kidnaping was that the green Chrysler machine was parked in the road and the Buick was parked in the road where they could see the lights of the house and they entered by the ladder and came down the steps inside the house and out the door."

On March 2, in the first stories of the kidnaping, mention was made of a green Chrysler having been seen near the Lindbergh home.

Green Car Seen At Scene of Kidnaping

The first confidential announcement of the kidnaping of the Lindbergh baby on the night of March 1, sent on the interstate police teletype, said the child had been spirited away in a green automobile. During a recent telephone conversation with the Norfolk public safety commissioner, Curtis described a green car to him and said that discovery of that automobile might prove the key to the whole mystery.

The only car which could be found in Norfolk answering the description was one owned by Curtis himself and found in his shipyard. It is from this car that scrapings have been taken for possible analysis.

Curtis Trembles in Cell as Officials Debate His Fate

Trenton, May 18—John Hughes Curtis, the man who saw himself as the rescuer of the Lindbergh baby and the hero of the country, sat trembling in his improvised cell in the garage of the Lindbergh home today while federal authorities consulted as to what charges may be made against him.

The man who fooled not only Col. Lindbergh, but police and naval authorities as well, was near to collapse as the full enormity of his offense, not only against the law, but against common decency, was borne home to him.

Definite action against Curtis, was deferred today pending the results of continuing examination.

Grill Curtis All Night, Continue Probe Today

In his news bulletin today, Col. H. Norman Schwarzkopf, superintendent of state police, said questioning of Curtis, who faked a story of negotiations with the baby's kidnapers, continued during the night and was to be continued today. No particular developments resulted from the night's questioning, he announced, nor were there any other developments.

Prosecutor Anthony M. Hauck of Hunterdon county was expected to appear before a justice of the peace this afternoon to request that Curtis be held in $50,000 bail.

Prosecutor Hauck was reported planning to charge Curtis with violating a section of the penal lew dealing with hindering the apprehension of a criminal and giving false reports.

The penalty under this section is three years in prison or a $1000 fine or both.

Rev. Peacock Asked to Come for Grill

Col. Schwarzkopf was asked whether Dean H. Dobson-Peacock, who was associated with Curtis and Rear Admiral Guy Burrage, would come to Hopewell or Trenton. Schwarzkopf had invited the minister to come voluntarily for questioning.

"Rev. Peacock has been asked to come to Hopewell," Schwarzkopf replied. "However, we have not heard from him as to the time of his arrival."

Asked whether Curtis would be arraigned before a justice of the peace in Flemington today, Schwarzkopf said: "Final dispositon of Mr. Curts has not been decided as yet." He added that he would endeavor to announce any plan to take such action two hours in advance, for the information of the public.

Salve Cloth Proved Identity of Baby

Washington May 18 (US)—The night the Lindbergh baby was kidnaped, Betty Gow, his nurse spread some salve on a piece of cloth and placed it on the baby's chest.

Federal authorities have learned now that it was this piece of cloth, with the remains of the salve still on it, that led to the positive identification of the baby's body.

When Miss Gow examined the body shortly after it was found, the salve cloth was still on it. She had cut the bit of cloth from one of the infant's little shirts.

HARD AT WORK PREPARING FOR REVIVAL

Rev. Dobson-Peacock Amazed at Duping by Curtis in Negotiations Hoax

Norfolk, Va., May 18 (INS)—Rev. H. Dobson-Peacock, who was associated with John Hughes Curtis in the Lindbergh "negotiations" hoax, had made no preparations at noon today to go to Hopewell, N. J., for questioning.

He had been invited to go voluntarily to confer with Jersey police. He said he expected to get in touch with them by telephone later in the day.

"I expect to be very busy here for the next few days conducting revival services," he said.

Rear Admiral Guy H. Burrage, U. S. N., rteired, the third member of the Norfolk negotiators, preserved his silence unbroken. He has refused to discuss the case since the child was found dead.

FAITH IN CURTIS.

Dean Dobson-Peacock declared he was utterly sincere and had implicit faith in the man who persuaded him to join the hunt for the kidnaped Lindbergh baby, as he explained today his part in the fantastic hoax to which Curtis confessed.

The clergyman outlined his work with Curtis and explained his position in the following statement:

"On the morning of March 10 Mr. Curtis telephoned his desire to see me on a very important matter. After pledging me to secrecy, he told of a visit mide him the night previously by a man for whom he had done work.

"This man told him he was acting as a go-between for the kidnapers, and, being unable to reach Col. Lindbergh, requested him to use his good offices in restoring the baby to his parents.

CONVINCING STORY

"Mr. Curtis replied that he would take the mater up with Dean Dobson-Peacock and if he thought thes tory rang true he would go ahead and get in touch with Col. Lindbergh.

"Mr. Curtis told me a very convincing story and I believed there was much truth in it. At noon the same day, we attempted to get in touch with Colonel Lindbergh but failed. A man who stated he was Colonel Lindbergh's personal representative, requested us to secure photographs of the child and forward them to him.

"On Friday, March 18, Mr. Curtis told me that the 'contact' had called him, urging haste. Mr. Curtis then suggested that as Admiral Burrage had brought Colonel Lindbergh home from Europe, it might be an easy matter to get in touch with him. We both saw the admiral and Mr. Curtis told him the story he had told me.

"The admiral telephoned to Hopewell and then wrote Colonel Lindbergh the following day. On Tuesday, March 22, we went to Hopewell, saw Colonel Lindbergh, to whom Mr. Curtis related his taory in exactly the words he had used to the admiral and myself. Colonel Lindbergh, though apparently not convinced, requested us to follow up the clue, and gave us his written authority.

MYSTIFIED BY CURTIS

All the time that I have been connected with the case, I have been convinced we were on the right track and I cannot for a moment conceive the state of mind which induced Mr. Curtis to write the confession in the press, with this exception,—that he has worked day and night with very little sleep for a period of over two months and that at the time of the writing of the confession he was utterly worn out with the terrific strain he had undergone.

"In reply to Mr. Curtis' alleged statement, as quoted in the press, that I might have prevented his "unfortunate part in this enormous deception' I feel called on to say that I cannot understand what Mr. Curtis meant unless it was that he had told me in the beginning that he would not undertake the negotiations alone."

Wife Still Loyal to Curtis; Town Is Shocked

Norfolk, Va., May 18—Behind the official picture, a pitiful and dramatic finale to the wretched fiasco was being written in Curtis' home town. The man, in spite of financial reverses, has held a high place in the community.

Curtis' few remaining friends defended him with assertions he must have become insane, but for every defender there were a dozen with "I told you so" on their lips.

The one person who still believes in Curtis is his wife. She sees in his confession no trace of insanity. It is her John's way of working out things for the best, as she sees it.

The two Curtis children, John Jr., 7, and Constance, 11, don't understand it at all. They only know that somehow a pall seems to hang over everything, and that "daddy made a mistake."

No Chance of Curtis Ever Profiting by His Hoax

Trenton, May 18—It was thought at first that John Hughes Curtis had conceived his wild tale in the Lindbergh baby hunt in an effort to lift himself from bankruptcy, into which the failure of the gas engine and boat corporation, of which he was president, had forced him.

It has developed, however, that Curtis received no money at all from Col. Lindbergh for his efforts and that he apparently never figured on obtaining any. The general feeling among the police is that financial worry temporarily unbalanced Curtis to such an extent that a vagrant thought that he might gain honor and glory as the man who restored the Lindbergh baby to its home found fertile ground upon which to grow.

Curtis' confused statement indicated his object in the hoax was the acquisition of money by the sale of his story to newspapers and newsreel companies. He said he had received large offers from each.

His purpose was defeated by the insistence of those offering to buy his story that the child be produced and the "negotiations" completed.

This was impossible, for there were no negotiations save those in Curtis' head—and the baby lay murdered.

"JAFSIE" VIEWS MANY ROGUES

Mt. Vernon, N. Y., May 18—Accompanied by four detectives, Dr. John F. Condon, Lindbergh negotiator, arrived at Mt. Vernon police headquarters at noon today to view rogues' gallery photographs.

Condon (Jafsie), who was the central figure in the payment of a $50,000 ransom to the purported kidnapers, was suddenly whisked away from his home in the Bronx by the four detectives.

Previous to the visit of the detectives to his home, "Jafsie" had announced he planned to rest all day.

An "important announcement" concerning the mysterious trip was to be made later today, it was reported.

Dr. Condon was continuing his search for a picture that resembled "John" or "Axel" or "John Axel" to whom he tossed the $50,000 over a Straymond cemetery wall in the Bronx, while Lindbergh waited nearby hoping his kidnaped son would be returned.

The rogues' gallery here is said to be the most complete in the state outside of New York city. Dr. Condon last week failed to pick any pictures from the New York collection.

Move to Keep Lindberghs' Stay in France Quiet

Paris, May 18 (INS)—News agencies in Paris were approached today and asked to respect the privacy of Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh if they came to France for the birth of Mrs. Lindbergh's second baby, expected in late summer.

In exchange, the emissary promised to supply the associations simultaneously with news of the baby's arrival.

A choice of four American-owned chateaus near the Spanish border has been offered to the Lindberghs through Mrs. Dwight Morrow, Mrs. Lindbergh's mother.

Ransom Parallel Is Seen in Lindbergh and Franks Cases

In this, the second of a series of articles comparing the Leopold-Loeb kidnaping of Bobby Franks, in Chicago in 1924; and the Lindbergh baby kidnaping and murder, another group of startling similarities between the two crimes is shown.

Two kidnapings which developed into murder stand out in horribly similar silhouette in America's history of crime—

The kidnaping and killing of 13-year-old Bobby Franks, in Chicago, in May, 1924;

The kidnaping and killing of 20-months-old Charles A. Lindbergh, Jr., in Hopewell, N. J., in March, 1932.

The Franks murder has been solved.

The Lindbergh baby murder is still on the list of unsolved crimes.

The Franks murder, as told in the first article of this series yesterday was the THRILL murder executed by Nathan E. Leopold, Jr., and Richard Loeb, abnormally brilliant students, as their conception and enactment of the "perfect crime." Ransom was demanded, but THRILL was the fundamental motive.

The Lindbergh Baby mystery, as far as established motive is concerned, remains unsolved.

As in the Franks murder, ransom was demanded.

In view of the striking similarity between the developments of the two cases the question of motivation again crops to the fore.

Was the Lindbergh Baby Murder another THRILL crime?

Perhaps no points of the Lindbergh baby kidnaping and murder are more truly in parallel to the Franks case than the arrangements for the money transfer.

Bobby Franks Case Somewhat Same

In the Bobby Franks kidnaping, Loeb and Leopold picked their quarry up on the public street, and within five minutes, had knocked him unconscious with a cold chisel.

The coroner's inquest showed

LINK CURTIS IN BOOTLEG DEAL

Mineola, N. Y., May 18 (AP)—Inspector Harold R. King of the Nassau County police said today that one hour before John Hughes Curtis confessed the Lindbergh hoax he was confronted in Hopewell with a Long Island bootlegger who charged him with having double-crossed him in a deal involving a substantial sum of money.

King said the bootlegger was found by John Fogarty, a private detective employed by Col. Henry Breckinridge, Col. Lindbergh's friend and attorney.

The bootlegger's story, according to King, is that last December he paid Curtis a substantial sum with the understanding that Curtis was to purchase influence for him with the authorities in Norfolk. This, he said, Curtis failed to do.

King said that at 5:30 Monday afternoon he received a telephone call from Foogarty summoning him to Hopewell. At 3 a. m. Tuesday, an hour before he sat down to write out his confession, Curtis was confronted with the bootlegger.

Drug Addict Confesses Kidnaping "Confession" Hoax

New York, May 18 (AP)—Frank Parzych, who said yesterday he was one of the kidnapers of the Lindbergh baby, confessed today that his story was false.

Parzych was arrested yesterday for wife desertion and volunteered the kidnap story.

Today he told Police Commissioner Mulrooney that his whole story of being connected with the kidnapers was a hoax.

KIDNAP VESSEL HUNT ENDED

Washington, May 18 (INS)—U. S. Coast Guard vessels on the Atlantic seaboard today resumed their more prosaic occupation of seeking rum smugglers and distressed vessels after an eight weeks' search for the Lindbergh kidnapers' phantom ship.

The order recalling the hunt for the vessel pictured by the deranged mind of John H. Curtis, Norfolk, Va., shipbuilder, was issued by Capt. L. C. Covell, acting commandant of the Coast Guard.

Scores of Government cutters and hundreds of smaller vessels of the Coast Guard were used in the search.

Captain Bares Hopes of Lindy in Sea Hunt

Atlantic City, N. J., May 18 (AP)—Capt. Leonard T. McLain, who piloted the yacht Cachelot in a rough Atlantic ocean to contact the kidnapers of the Lindbergh baby, did not mince words when he learned John Hughes Curtis, Norfolk shipbuilder, had confessed his part was all a hoax.

"A cruel, despicable piece of work," was the Maine skipper's comment.

He went on to tell of the final voyage — when Col. Lindbergh, aboard the Cachelot, heard of the finding of his son's body.

"I had every confidence that when he left Atlantic City we really were going to meet the kidnapers," McLain said. "That confidence was caused by the fact that Lindbergh himself was aboard. His very manner seemed to create a feeling among us that we would be successful. It was Lindbergh who stood atop the pilot house in a vain effort to attract the vessel we went out to meet by flashing signals. It was a cruel piece of work to make him believe that the voyage would mean the return of his son. It was a cruel, despicable piece of work."

Captain McLain said he had been firm in his belief that such negotiations could not be carried on at sea.

"Only the mate and myself could handle the dory in such a sea," he declared, "and it was between us who would actually make the contact. Even Colonel Lindbergh felt so sure that we would get back his baby that he wanted to go himself. But it was finally decided that when he met the boat we were supposel to contact, either the mate or I would actually make the contact and bring the baby back to the Cachelot.

"The colonel's spirit was very high. Even when we had put in at Cape May he was not downcast. Then he learned of the discovery of his boy's body. You know the rest.'

Search for Fleischer Renewed in Mexico City

Mexico City, May 18 (INS)—More than 50 picked detectives scoured Mexico City today for Harry Fleischer, Detroit gangster, long sought in connection with the Lindbergh kidnaping, now believed to be hiding in the capital.

Chief of Police Manuel Rubio Oviedo told International News Service that a hotel proprietor and the landlady of a lodging house identified pictures of the gangster as those of a man who stopped in their establishments during the last few weeks.

Fleischer, the police chief said, was known to be here as late as May 6, hiding in a boarding house.

Detectives visiting every hotel in Mexico City frequented by Americans declared they picked up the gangster's trail at the Hotel Francis. The proprietor said his suspicions were aroused by the fact that the three men, although apparently well supplied with money, elected to stay in a single room.

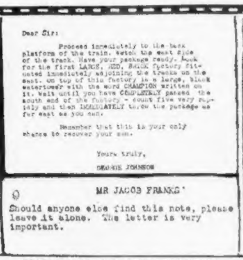
Pope Receives Archbishop

Vatican City, May 18 (AP)—Pope Pius today gave a private audience to Mgr. Alfred Sinnott, archbishop of Winnipeg. The Pope imparted his apostolic blessing.

Step by Step—Lindbergh Baby Slayers Follow Step of Chicago Thrill Killers

RICHARD LOEB NATHAN LEOPOLD

BOBBY FRANKS



Dear Sir:

Proceed immediately to the back platform of the train. Watch the east side of the track. Have your package ready. Look for the first LARGE, RED, BRICK factory situated immediately adjoining the tracks on the east. On top of this factory is a large, black watertower with the word CHAMPION written on it. Wait until you have COMPLETELY passed the south end of the factory - count five very rapidly and then IMMEDIATELY throw the package as far east as you can.

Remember that this is your only chance to recover your son.

Yours truly,

GEORGE JOHNSON

MR JACOB FRANKS'

Should anyone else find this note, please leave it alone. The letter is very important.

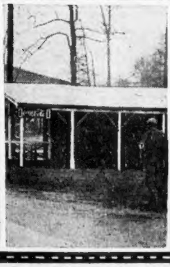
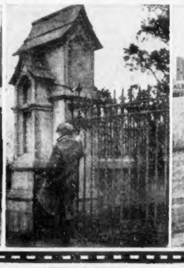
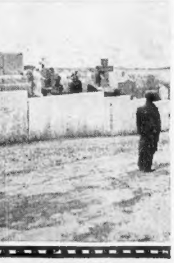
RANSOM MONEY PAID
The first Franks' note told how the money was to be paid—and the second (above) told how it was to be delivered. (Below) You see the Lindbergh kidnapers' schedule of ransom paid. Both strikingly similar. And both equally inhuman and wanton.



FIRST STEP
Where the kidnapers of the Lindbergh baby left the first note—a "treasure hunt" idea that sent the negotiators to a second place. The Franks fiends told the father to take $10,000 on a train—



SECOND STEP
Here a contact was made with the Lindbergh "kidnapers" — and the move went on. But the Franks abductors gave orders where to hurl the money that was to pay for the release of the slain Bobby—



THIRD STEP
To this point went the negotiators—and the band received $50,000. But before new orders could be given to Franks—the pair were caught. Above, you see Leopold digging at Bobby's "grave."

Curtis' Cruel Hoax Makes Pikers Out of Jacob and Old Doc Cook

He Had a Phantom Ship and Phantom Crew and Built Up Phantom Hopes

The deception practiced by John H. Curtis, Norfolk, Va., boatbuilder, upon the Lindberghs, officials and the public, in his pretended negotiations with kidnapers of the Lindbergh baby had a place today among the great hoaxes of Biblical and secular history.

Search for a parallel in which the deception had for its victim parental love and the solicitude of a father for his son leads back to the 27th chapter of Genesis and the story of Jacob masquerading as his brother Esau to obtain the coveted blessing of Isaac.

No hoax in modern times has received as wide publicity or as general acceptance as the activities of Curtis as he traveled about by land, sea and air for what he announced were contacts with representatives of the kidnapers.

SURPASSES DR. COOK.

The nearest thing shown in available records was the North Pole discovery hoax perpetrated by Dr. Frederick A. Cook, who in 1909 was hailed as the first man to reach the pole until his pretentions were proved to be false.

In 1835 marvelous discoveries on the moon, attributed to Sir John Herschel, famous scientist, were reported in an article written by Richard Adams Locke and published in the old New York Sun.

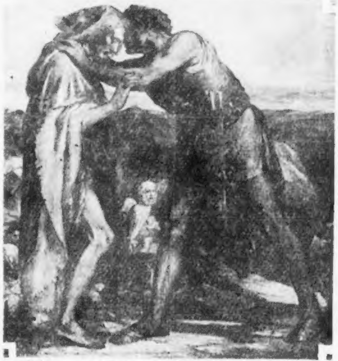
Dr. Frederick A. Cook, whose hoax had the whole world fooled about the North Pole, but wrenched no heart strings, built no false hopes.

Innumerable literary, artistic and scientific hoaxes have been exposed, but these for the most part victimized the comparatively few persons interested in the subjects and attracted only minor public attention.

PHANTOM SHIP, CREW

Although history has set down other hoaxes, none, perhaps, was so revealing of elaborate detail. Curtis invented a phantom ship. He placed aboard her a phantom crew. He gave them names, and he gave them aliases.

He sailed his ship, with her crew of abductors, extortionists and murderers up and down the Atlantic seaboard—into inlets, along the coast line and into Long Island Sound. He invented engine trouble for the craft, and arranged repairs.



George Frederick Watts' famous painting of the meeting between Jacob and Esau—just after the first great hoax of Biblical times, at a time Jacob was about to commit suicide.

'KEEP HANDS OFF,' JAPAN WARNS

By FRAZIER HUNT
Noted war correspondent and author.
(Copyright, 1932, by Universal Service, Inc.)

Tokyo, May 18—Japan has a peculiar destiny in the Orient, the development of which lies in Manchuria. Japan will carry out her aims and will tolerate no interference by the League of Nations, the United States or Soviet Russia, should they be inclined to interfere.

This is the explanation, in brief, of what Japan is doing in the Far East today. It comes from Foreign Minister Kenkichi Yoshisawa.

NO INTERFERENCE

Forty-eight hours after his father-in-law, Premier Inukai, was assassinated, the foreign minister received me.

Answering my questions, the foreign minister said:

"It might as well be said frankly, that while Japan welcomes advice from the world regarding Manchuria, it will absolutely not permit America or any country to interfere in any way with her peculiar position and responsibility. The same is true regarding the League.

"Unless the League and its Manchurian commission recognizes this peculiar right and destiny, Japan will not recognize its findings and dictates. Shanghai was an incident, but Manchuria is our very life.

"America has no need for fear regarding Manchuria. American business and commercial interests will have full rights.

"Japan's economic and military life depends on a peaceful Manchuria. She does not desire to annex Manchuria, but we do want a strong, independent buffer state to keep peace and order.

"Japan is more anxious than any other nation to see China a proper, peaceful and unified country."

"A WAR OF INK"

I asked him about Japanese-Soviet relations. Yoshisawa answered:

"Due to the sending of five or six Soviet divisions to eastern Siberia, conditions are more strained than six months ago, but so far it has been a war of ink rather than bullets.

"At present, we feel no necessity for making a non-aggression pact with the Soviets. The nine-power pact covers that."

As I arose to go, I asked one question more:

"How does Japan view the possibility of granting independence to the Philippine Islands?"

This brought from the foreign minister:

"We have absolutely no interest in the Philippines save commerce. Japan's future lies in the zone of Manchurian development."

RUSSELLS LOSE DEATH RACE

While his wife and young son, still two days away on the sea, were losing their race to reach the bedside, William E. Russell 2nd, brother of Mayor Russell of Cambridge, died at Mentone, France, early today.

According to a cable to Mayor Russell, a sister of the brothers, Mrs. Margaret Powell, was the only family member present when death came.

A year ago, Mayor Russell's brother, attorney and a former State senator, went to the French watering place for his health, but it failed to improve. Last Thursday word was received that the former senator's condition was critical.

Mrs. Russell and their 10-year-old son, Henry E., left their Dedham home and sailed from New York aboard the liner Majestic.

Russell served nine months overseas with the marines during the war, and was once connected with the law firm of Gaston, Snow, Saltonstall & Hunt. The family formerly lived in St. Paul, Minn., where he practised law.

Rock Island Road Asks to Consolidate

Washington, May 18 (AP)—The Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific Railroad Company today asked the Interstate Commerce Commission for permission to consolidate its subsidiaries into one company to be known as the Pacific Company.

The consolidation would bring 7834 miles of railroad already operated by the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific into one corporation.

YOUNG BEACON HILL BROKER MISSING

Dispatches from Paris today announced the mysterious disappearance there of Ferdinand Kothe young Beacon Hill insurance broker, and revealed he vanished from this city two months ago.

The fact that Kothe, recently divorced by his wife, Mrs. Eleanor Kothe of Hingham, had dropped out of sight here was revealed when it was learned the American consulate had asked Paris police to seek him.

"UP AGAINST IT"

According to cables from Paris Kothe, who is 28, arrived in that city April 9 and then dropped from sight. Friends asked that search be made for him, in view of the fact that he had been "much depressed."

A checkup by officials of Bolt Dalton & Church, insurance brokers at 89 Broad st., today revealed that Kothe vanished two months ago after being in their employ 1 months.

A few days later Charles A Moore, a fellow employe, received a note from Kothe stating:

"I'm up against it financially. I'm going to fold up and disappear."

A close friend and roommate of Kothe said he had planned to leave town two months before he did go and had spoken of joining the French Foreign Legion.

ACCOUNTS IN ORDER

Officials of the insurance company said there was no shortage in Kothe's accounts, and they were unable to offer any explanation of his claim of financial difficulties.

Mrs. Kothe said she married the young insurance man four years ago. They formerly lived in a Beacon Hill apartment, later moving to Hingham. Kothe, she said, attended Brown University.

According to Mrs. Kothe he is the son of the late John Ferdinand Kothe. His mother is married again and makes her home in Melrose. Mrs. Kothe said she did not know any of her former husband's friends in Paris.

10 Buildings Burn in Village Near Albany

Albany, N. Y., May 18 (AP)—Ten buildings, including both residential and business structures, were destroyed by fire early today in Castleton, a village on the east bank of the Hudson River, ten miles south of here.

Firemen brought the blaze under control after a four hour fight.

BIG SHAKEUP IN PARK POLICE

The biggest shakeup in the history of the metropolitan district police was announced today by Capt. Edward W. Wood, executive officer of the department, in an order effective May 24.

Six lieutenants and three sergeants will be moved to new posts while almost two-thirds of the regular patrolmen change stations.

Lieutenants affected by the order are Thomas E. Flowers, from Fellsway station to Blue Hills; Harry Hayes, from Blue Hills to Fellsway; Burton A. Murray, from Revere to Charles River upper division; Daniel McLeod, from Upper Division to Revere; Abino Albert, from Charles River Lower Division to Revere; Leonard S. Pearl, from Revere to Lower Division.

The shift of sergeants will send William S. Kintry from the Fellsway to Revere Beach, George Johnson from Revere to Nantasket and Guy J. Dugan from Nantasket to Revere.

Doumer's Assassin Gets Mental Tests

Paris, May 18 (AP)—Dr. Paul Gorgulov, the assassin of President Paul Doumer, underwent tests today to determine whether he is sane.

Dr. Gorgulov told a magistrate yesterday he was in a "kind of hypnotic sleep" when he fired. He explained the assassination was "a mistake" because he had thought the President, and not the premier, was responsible for France's foreign policy.

U. S. HOPE LIES IN BEER, SALES TAX—SHOUSE

By JOHN T. LAMBERT

The United States government ought to adopt the sales tax, provide for the return of legal beer and wines and project a substantial bond issue to put men to work on useful, constructive projects, Jouett Shouse, executive chairman of the Democratic National Committee, declared here today in an interview with the Boston Evening American.

"This combination of projects," Mr. Shouse declared, "would revive the morale of the country. It would implant confidence in business men. It would forestall the increased suffering which is bound to exist among the people unless valiant, heroic means are employed to avert it.

"This all requires a courage 4and leadership which we have not had from Mr. Hoover and which we cannot expect from Mr. Hoover."

Following an address to the Wellesley College students last night, Mr. Shouse breakfasted with Governor Ely at the Copley-Plaza today, conferred with John H. Fahey and other Democratic leaders and made ready to address the Democratic Club of Harvar tonight.

"The national government," he said, "is the one institution of national scope capable of adopting a program that can be nation-wide in its consequences.

SALES TAX VITAL.

"The national government should provide a substantial bond issue for essential public works. Its people would then be afforded the opportunity of supplying useful labor without resort to expensive and demeaning charity. The flow of credit would be unloosed. Confidence would be revived everywhere. Private employers would be heartened by th example of the government. The first great blow would be struck at the business crisis which has been allowed for three years to attain formidable and formidable proportions.

"The sales tax is vitally necessary to supply new revenue and to prevent exhaustion and deple- of prcperties which have been in the past available for taxation.

"The sales tax is just in principle; it is easy to collect; it supplies a convenience, not a hardship, to the payer .

PROSPERITY IN BEER

"Any statement that the sales tax is a special levy upon the 'poor man' is utterly fallacious. The man who receives an income of, says $1000 a year, spends about $700 of that amount for food, clothing and the necessaries of life specifically exempted from a sales tax. If he spent all of the remainder of $300 for taxable articles, at the rate, say of 2 per cent, his tax would amount only to $6 a year. And even that would be paid in infinitesimal sums.

"Legalizing the manufacture and distribution of beer and wines would supply an obvious source of income now entirely lost. Moreover, it would result in the creation of an entirely new industry, not now legally existing. I have heard it estimated that the construction and refitting of breweries, the revival of coopering and the bottling industry, the establishing of brewing machinery and the purchase of grains from the farmers would entail a new industry of $3,000,000,000. I am not certain of that amount. I nany event, it would be substantial, and it is an economic certainty which the government should not ignore, at a time like this."

Mr. Shouse said to the Wellesley College students, in answer to a question, that the Democratic party possessed two of the best brains in the world in Owen D. Young and Newton D. Baker.

"I did not indorse either for the Democratic nomination for President," he explained. "In fact, I have indorsed no candidate and do not intend to.

"The Democratic party possesses an abundance of men skilled in politics, among many others Governor Smith, Governor Roosevelt, Governor Ritchie and Governor Byrd.

"I think Speaker Garner, in some respects, is the most skillful politician of all."

SUMMER COTTAGE RUINED BY FIRE

32 MORE VOTES CLAIMED FOR ROOSEVELT

By the Associated Press

More convention votes were in the offing today for Franklin D. Roosevelt and President Hoover through party conventions in Alabama, South Carolina and Vermont, and a Democratic primary in the District of Columbia.

Alfred E. Smith, with no new delegates in sight today, had advanced to second place in the Democratic standing by taking New Jersey's 32 votes (claimed) in yesterday's primary and winning Connecticut's instructed delegation of 16. His total stood at 94.

Roosevelt swung his total of pledged, claimed and instructed delegates to 396 by winning Montana and New Mexico.

On the Republican side President Hoover ran his total claimed strength to 967, with New Jersey's 35 and Montana's 11. He was expected today to get 19 in Alabama and nine in Vermont.

Besides the capital's six votes, Roosevelt forces were after 18 in South Carolina and eight in Vermont.

SMITH SPECIAL SEATS BOOKED

Reservations are being received for the Solid Smith Special, which will carry Senators Walsh and Coolidge, Governor Ely, Gen. Cole and other Massachusetts delegates and alternates to the Democratic national convention at Chicago.

Headquarters for the delegation will be Hotel Stevens, Michigan blvd., at 7th st., it was announced.

Charles F. Riordan, acting chairman of the Democratic State committee, is receiving reservations for the special, which leaves South Station at 1:35 o'clock, daylight saving time, Saturday, June 25.

Drys Will Revive "10 Nights in Barroom"

St. Paul, May 18 (AP)—"Ten Nights in a Bar Room," the play once used as a temperance argument, will be revived in the educational program of the Minnesota Anti-Saloon League.

The Rev. D. L. McBride, secretary of the league, announced today a talking picture of the play would be used.

Originator of Chair Hits Death Penalty

New York, May 18 (INS)—Celebrating his 92d birthday today, Dr. A. D. Rockwell of Queens, originator of the electric chair in use at Sing Sing reiterated his opposition to capital punishment.

The death penalty, he declared is only a confession of the law's failure.

POPE WARNS WORLD ON 'RED' MENACE

who through their own speculations were the cause of so much ill, became the first damaging victims, pulling down with them numberless fortunes, thus confirming what Christ said:

"'The sinner will be punished through his own sin.'

GREED IS BLAMED

"Greed is the root of every ill, being sordid egotism, and has pushed the world into its present dire straits.

"From greed proceeds the unjust, unequal distribution of the wealth of nations, accumulated in a few hands with untold sufferings to the masses."

The same egotism, exploiting legitimate patriotism, pushed it to exaggerated nationalism, embittering international relations so that every excess seems justified, and what is deplored among individuals become permissable and even praised when accomplished in the name of exaggerated nationalism, declared the Pope.

"The great law of human love has been replaced by hatred, while healthy principles have been trodden upon, and the solid foundations of right and loyalty, upon which the state is rested, are forsaken."

The Pontiff then struck at "the enemies of every social order, such as Communists and atheists," who, he said, profit by the world's sufferings to break every divine and human law in declaring war against religion and against God.

ATHEISTS SCORED

"Today atheism has reached great masses," the Pope said, "by filtering into schools, making use of films, phonographs and radio for propaganda, by printing leaflets in all languages, and holding exhibitions and creating its own military and economic organizations.

"We know they shall not win because the divine saviors are watching, and it is comforting to see the rush of love to God.

"This choice is offered to human liberty—for God, or against God? Which must decide humanity's fate?

"Those who do not wish anarchy must act energetically to prevent the enemies of religion from achieving their aims. They must act through prayer, which will help in eliminating the unlimited greed for earthly goods which is the real cause for the present difficulties."

PRAYER URGED

If those who through excessive industrial production have fallen into unemployment and poverty would give adequate time to prayer, work and production would resume at a reasonable rate while the social struggle will be superceded by a nobler, more peaceful quest to achieve celestial and eternal goods, the pontiff declared.

This also is the open way to peace, he pointed out, and called on everyone to pray for peace, especially those having government responsibilities. To prayer it is necessary to add repentance and voluntary self-sacrifice, even when it is the most painful, he said.

Only through the spirit of penance, the pontiff said, can stable peace be made possible on earth.

"But to create this atmosphere of lasting peace," he said, "neither peace treaties, nor the most solemn pacts, nor international meetings nor conferences, nor even the noblest and most disinterested efforts of any statesmen, will suffice unless in the first place are recognized the sacred rights of natural and divine law.

MORAL LAW CITED

"No leader in public economy, no power of organization will be able to bring social conditions to a peaceful solution unless first in the very field of economies there triumphs the moral law, based on God and conscience."

Let the poor, he said, and "those facing the hard trial of want of work and food . . . in a like spirit of penance . . . accept with humble and trustful heart from the hand of God the effects of poverty rendered harder by the distress in which mankind is now struggling."

PARALLEL SEEN IN LINDY-FRANKS CASES

that death had followed from suffocation. Leopold and Loeb, in their confession later, admitted that they had not intended to commit murder but that when murder had been committed, they determined to collect the ransom money for a corpse.

In the Lindbergh kidnaping it has been assumed that the original plot was not to kill the baby, but that, either because the baby began to cry, or because he had been accidentally injured during the act of kidnaping and seemed about to die, the murder was committed and the kidnapers determined to "collect on the corpse."

From that point onward the similarity becomes even more striking.

Youths Plan to Dispose of Body

Immediately after the Franks boy had been killed Leopold and Loeb went about their work of hiding the body. They went to a dreary swampy section southwest of Chicago, stripped the body of clothing, scarred the face so that it would be next to impossible to identify it unless it were found within a short time, AND THEN OPENED RANSOM NEGOTIATIONS.

Immediately after the killing of the Lindbergh Baby, according to the autopsy findings, the little body was stripped of clothing and hidden in the lonely gully less than five miles from his home, with the face downward in the earth—one method, according to doctors, by which recognizable features might most rapidly disappear.

Method of Notices To Boy's Father

In the Franks case the kidnapers then told the father that he should go to a given drug store and await a telephone call at a given hour.

In the Lindbergh case, after Dr. John F. Condon (Jafsie) has been named as official intermediary for Lindbergh, instructions were given Dr. Condon to go to a spot near the Woodlawn Cemetery and look under a rock.

In the Franks case the father, in his anguish and excitement, forgot the location of the drug store, but the kidnapers kept their part of the plan and left word for him to go to a given railroad station, board a given train, and look in a given time-table box for further instructions.

In the Lindbergh case "Jafsie" went to the designated rock and there found instructions telling him to go to 233d st. and Jerome ave. He did and got further instructions there.

Father Does Not Demand Proof

In the Franks case the father did not demand receipt of the "token" to prove the kidnapers had

In the Lindbergh case that

In tthe Lindbergh case tha "token" was demanded, and an extra intermediate step became necessary. There was a second rendezvous, and in the meantime the "token"—the sleeping suit taken from the baby—was delivered to "Jafsie."

In the Franks case detectives who followed through to the time table box on the specified train found a note telling them just where to toss the ransom package from the speeding platform.

In the Lindbergh case, after receipt of the identifying "token," the ransom was tossed over a wall to an unseen man.

Rendezvous to Be At Distant Point

In the Franks case the instructions had been that a rendezvous be kept at distant point, where, it was said, the boy would be returned. Finding of his body, and general publication of the fact, obviously made that rendezvous farcical.

In the Lindbergh case the body of the baby had not been found and Col. Lindbergh, "Jafsie" and others kept a futile appointment off Martha's Vineyard, on the Massachusetts coast, without, obviously, effecting the return of the baby.

In each case, though the victim had been killed, the kidnapers held to their plan to collect the agreed ransom money.

In each case the negotiations were carried on at some distance from the scene of the crime or the homes of the parents.

In each case the money was demanded first, with the point of return of the child fixed at distant point.

In each case the warnings that "notification of the police will bring death to your boy" brought urgent pleadings to the authorities to refrain from making any captures until the child had been recovered.

Read tomorrow's Boston Evening American for another chapter of this unusual comparison of two unusual crimes.

FOREST BLAZES STILL RAGE IN QUEBEC

Quebec, Que., May 18 (AP)—Another day of cloudless skies today faced weary fire fighters throughout the province.

From the Ontario border to the Gaspe peninsula and from Rouyn to Maine came reports that forest land was being swept by scores of fires. Several points suffered losses of buildings as the fire, getting out of hand, swept into settlements.

A survey today showed:

Val Alain—40 buildings destroyed, including church and railway station. Many homeless. Damage $300,000.

Masse, Matane County—150 families homeless. Fire threatening scores of summer houses along Metis river.

Rouyn and Noranda—Damage to mining companies estimated at 500,000. Two railway bridges and telegraph wires burned.

Sully—40,000 trees, property of United States owners, burned near Maine border. Fire under control half a mile from the village, which prepared for hasty evacuation.

Villeroi, Lotbiniere County—Railway station, school house, a dwelling and a wood yard destroyed.

St. Eusebe, Temiscouata County—A farm and outbuildings burned.

Estcourt, Temiscouata County—The mills of Ducharme and International Paper Co. threatened.

Destructive fires were burning in the townships of Blais and Langis, in Matane County and Ste. Louis and St. Aubert, in L'Islet County.

Mayor Calls Off Hunt for Dog; Pal Stolen, Is His Belief

Mayor Michael C. O'Neill of Everett last night abandoned search for his lost dog, "Pal," and thanked the police department for its assistance in the hunt.

The Everett chief executive, who believes someone has stolen the dog, stated he has visited over 100 places in Greater Boston in search for "Pal." The dog, a valuable shepherd, is greatly missed at the O'Neill home at 40 Summer st., Everett.

Mayor O'Neill is contemplating purchasing another dog.

SON TAUGHT LAW BY DAD

DAD RULES EVEN IN CLASSES

"It was quite an exprience having my own son in five of my classes during his three years at Boston University Law school, but I treated him like all the rest. I even raised Cain with him his first year in my torts class," Professor Frank L. Simpson of the law school declared today.

The son, Donald R. Simpson, is a graduate of Dartmouth in 1929 and is being graduated from B. U. Law school in June with highest honors.

Like his famous father, the senior member of the law school faculty, the younger Simpson is a member of Woolsack law school fraternity of which he is undergraduate president. Professor Simpson is president of the Board of Governors of the same society.

Professor Simpson is a graduate of Boston University in the class of 1898 and of the law school in 1903. At present he teaches classes in torts, trusts and equity.

De Valera to Attend Ottawa Conference

Dublin, Irish Free State, May 18 (AP)—President Eamon De Valera announced today he would attend the Imperial economic conference in Ottawa in July if government business did not make it impossible.

Three cabinet ministers probably will accompany him.

LIBERIANS BURN MANY ALIVE

Geneva, May 18 (AP)—The burning alive of many men, women and children by the Liberian frontier military force was reported to the League of Nations today in a communication signed in behalf of the American, British and French governments.

These atrocities, the report asserted, were committed against tribesmen of the Kru Coast.

The Liberian delegate submitted a memorandum to the league's Liberian commission confirming the burning of 44 villages and the killing of 81 men, 49 women and 29 children.

Doctor Tells How Oxygen First Saved Dying Man

Baltimore, May 18 (AP)—A Pennsylvania country doctor told the American Therapeutic Society here how a dying patient's plea, "Give me breath!" led to the physician's discovery, 47 years ago, of oxygen's life-saving property in the treatment of pneumonia.

Dr. G. E. Holtzapple of York, Pa., described how from 10 a. m. until late at night March 6, 1885, he sat on a bedroom floor in Loganville, Pa., and with a test tube, a flame, some black magnanese or iron, some potash, a cork and some tubing generated oxygen which, bubbling up from a bucket of water held under the patient's nose and mouth, turned his face from blue to pink and set him on the road to recovery.

"My patient's friends and relatives crowded into the bedroom watching to see if I was going to kill him," the doctor continued. "A woman held the bucket under his chin. Inside of four minutes I could see the blue beginning to disappear and color coming back and I was so excited I thought I'd have a fit. In twenty minutes his condition had improved so markedly that those in the room thought a miracle had happened."

The patient's words "give me breath," the doctor said, struck him with the thought—"what this man needs is oxygen gas."

CANNON SCORES WOMEN WETS

Des Moines, Ia., May 18 (AP)—Bishop James Cannon, Jr., of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, last night characterized women who follow "Mrs. Charles S. Sabin's bandwagon" for prohibition repeal as "froth."

Speaking under the auspices of the Allied Forces for Prohibition, he declared women who worked for prohibition repeal in his State never had been recognized as leaders for social welfare, and attacked what he called the "high society" organization of prohibition reformers.

A Personal Message
TO THRIFTY FAMILIES

Thrifty families in the East have for generations filled their coal bins with hard coal at the low spring prices.

This year, more than ever before, wise buyers will look ahead to next winter and make sure that they will have clean, safe, dependable heat at low cost.

Such buyers are making provision against future needs, by buying our SUPER-CLEANED READING ANTHRACITE NOW.

They find every pound of it to be highest-quality hard coal from the heat-rich veins of the famous Southern Anthracite field of Pennsylvania.

Dimes and dollars saved this year are worth more than for years. Save yours by buying NOW—and by buying SUPER-CLEANED READING ANTHRACITE—hard, black, shiny, heat-packed coal—a size for every kind and type of solid fuel heater or cook stove. All of the same high quality—but I particularly call your attention to our Super-Cleaned CHESTNUT sized coal. CHESTNUT is a truly All-Purpose fuel equally ideal for practically all furnaces, ranges, heaters, and small stoves.

See your local coal merchant at once and arrange with him for a full supply of SUPER-CLEANED READING ANTHRACITE. Or, if you do not know where to get Super-Cleaned Reading Anthracite, write us at the address below and we'll give you the names of the nearest Reading deale

Sweeping AHEAD

WATCH the cars with ATLANTIC WHITE FLASH go sweeping ahead of the rest! See them swing up the steepest hills, with the power and nimbleness of a panther. Follow them in traffic, where their flashing pick-up shoots them into the lead like a bullet from a rifle. Note how cool their engines stay, mile after mile, wide open.

People using ATLANTIC WHITE FLASH for the first time are amazed that its sensational performance can be had at regular-gas price. The reason is that back of every gallon is this sincere ideal: To give you a better product, and greater value, than your gasoline-money has ever bought before.

Try ATLANTIC WHITE FLASH today. Fill the tank; then put your car through the hardest tests you can think of. You'll quickly learn why this great super-fuel is sweeping ahead . . . in popularity as well as performance!

Better in a dozen ways

FLASHING PICK-UP
Your car leaps from 4 to 40 like a startled deer.
EXTRA POWER
Less gear-shifting . . . on steep hills and in congested traffic.
MAXIMUM MILEAGE
Takes figures off your gasoline bill and puts them on your speedometer.
ALWAYS UNIFORM
Wherever you buy it . . . city or country . . . the same supreme quality.
ALWAYS DEPENDABLE
Drivers find that their cars stall less often with this dependable motor fuel.
COOLER PERFORMANCE
No heavy, sluggish substances to overheat your engine.
QUICKER STARTING
A touch of the starter and you're away like a flash.
NO UNPLEASANT ODOR
No sulphurous or other fumes to spoil your motoring-pleasure.
ALL-ROUND ECONOMY
Fewer repair-bills; less battery-strain; a clean and powerful engine.
SCIENTIFIC FORMULA
Acknowledged to be one of the finest in the entire refining industry.
HIGH ANTI-KNOCK RATING
Few motor fuels at any price can equal its high rating.
CRYSTAL CLEAR
No artificial coloring to hide its natural purity.

May Christie

(During Betty Alden's absence on a vacation, May Christie, famous English authoress, will write on the activities of society folk.)

NEW YORK, MAY 18—Wasn't last Saturday (as well as Sunday) one of the most enchanting days of the year . . .?

Like a Summer's day . . . when no "rough winds did shake the darling buds of May" . . . and the prim tulips outside the Plaza stood like approving little sentinels as the Beer Parade went by . . . for hours . . . "when Spring unlocks the flowers to paint the laughing soil" . . . and everyone was gay . . . united in the common cause of what has often been called the "English working man's beverage" . . . (come! fill the foaming tankard!)

May Christie

We lunched in the Casino in the Park last Saturday . . . on the terrace . . . which was a bower of greenery, inside and out . . . and full, as usual at luncheon these days, of smart and cheerful people.

As we entered the foyer, intensive sounds of revelry (in treble . . . I don't mean triple . . . I mean that high unbridled note when men are absent) came from the long room on the left . . . this, it transpired, dear readers, was the Gala Spring Luncheon of the "Cheerio Club" . . . and though (being with a young man . . . he, too, decked in snappy Spring attire) I did NOT enter on that side or therein, I had a fleeting glimpse of Mrs. Florence Foster Jenkins, (president of the Verdi Club) . . . and Mrs. Thomas Appleton (president of the "Cheerio") . . . and Mrs. Allen McLean . . . and Mrs. Lee Ziegler.

Mayor Takes Time Out in Big Parade

EDDIE DUCHIN (how boyish he looks) greeted us in the hall . . . and immediately thereafter we ran into Miss Jane Cotter, who was staging the Fashion Show . . . of which more later . . .

We walked through the oval restaurant out to the terrace . . . and found ourselves almost directly opposite Mayor Jimmie Walker and his Civic Minions . . . and WERE they having a good time in the middle of their Beer Parade! . . . and how!

Fifi Widener was seated not far off . . . and as we consumed our honeydew melon and curried shrimps and strawberries and cream, I perceived that nearly all the women in the place wore (1) black-and-white, (2) navy blue and white, (3) pale grey, (4) grey-with-a-dash-of-red, and that some of the gayest tables were composed, even if it was a Saturday (and men were supposed to be "at large") entirely of women . . .

* * *

Beau Brummels March

DOUBTLESS the Beau Brummels (and other lesser males) were promenading in the Beer Parade . . . poor darlings, to a European mind, it does seem extraordinary how meekly the male element (outwardly) have taken all these stringent laws . . . no matter how they continually break them in spirit . . . (spirit in the second sense . . . I mean, literally . . .)

In no other city in the world, by the way, are there MORE COCKTAIL PARTIES than in New York . . . I speak definitely of what I see . . . of what goes on DAILY . . .

* * *

MAYOR JIMMY WALKER seated with at least a dozen men, and more, at a table on the terrace, looked the picture of joy and determination!

He left before the Fashion Show . . . but I can testify to the delighted smiles on the faces of the two-gentlemen-on-his-right who didn't miss a point of a trick when the mannequins paraded . . . after Jimmie had departed.

As for the period when the Bathing Suits came on . . . well . . . well, let me be lenient!

* * *

Sports Styles Decreed

THE FASHION SHOW was lovely. All Sports things . . . and let me whisper in your ear that a kind of marine-blue-and-white (either in little checks or in polka dots, or suitably combined together), is going to be e-nor-mously de rigeur both for the beach and the country this summer.

Chenille knit dresses were extremely smart, comme ca . . . and three-piece chenille knit suits . . . in blue and white . . . and cool "flat crepe" printed sports dresses.

* * *

THERE was a wonderful bouclaine suit, in red and white . . . by the way, white-with-more-than-a-mere-dash-of-red is going to be very popular, too, this summer.

"Ensign" jackets, either in white or navy blue, and worn over blue or white sports dresses (short-sleeved) were very modish.

Washable pique dresses, too, were in evidence . . . most practical . . .

Cotton in all forms will be worn . . . and those smart little tailored suits of light washable flannel.

* * *

Bathing Suits Scanty

BATHING SUITS were extremely scanty, as was to be expected . . .

Pajamas in the "beachcomber" manner . . . or should I say "Sing Sing"? . . . many of them were loudly striped . . . there was one in Jersanese that was particularly delectable . . .

Departing from the Casino after lunch, we exited from the Park on Fifth Avenue . . . and our astonished eyes beheld none other than Mrs. Frank C. Henderson and Mrs. Stanwood Menken, like angels of mercy, in snowy white, marching along, heading a unit of the Beer Parade, in front of a big band . . . and the drums going . . . and the trumpets yahooing . . . and everyone waving and clapping!

Past the Knickerbocker Club these two indefatigable creatures had proudly marched . . . past the Metropolitan Club . . . on, ON, brave hearts, whoopla ! !

Wear Blue Cockade

GETTING into the comparative calm of Madison ave. we encountered (or rather, it would be more accurate to say, we were waylaid) by Madame Alma Clayburgh brandishing the "blue cockade," with Alma Junior on one side of her and Joan Macomber on t'other . . .

The "blue cockade," as I have informed you previously is the emblem (for ten cents) of an anti-prohibition sassiety which has two sets of quarters on Madison ave. in the Mayfair area . . . the scene of much youth, beauty, enthusiasm, wit, wim and wigor . . . where our best debutantes are to be found in the cause of anti-prohibition . . .

Debs Adorn Opening

IN THE EVENING we went to dine at that charming new spot, the "Maison Royale," just off Fifth ave. on East 52nd st., which last Saturday had its opening . . .

It is run by popular Charlie Lucas, who, as a naval officer, served in the World War, and was decorated . . . .

Plenty of debutantes were there, starting off the evening with their escorts.

These openings are lots of fun. We dined "a trois," that popular bachelor and bank vice-president, Dr. Sannini, being the other male corner of the triangle. The atmosphere is very Parisian.

From there we proceeded to entertain a party at the Pierrette Club, which had its crowded "Beer Parade party, and what a wonderful evening we had there! Of my my meeting with Dorothy Mackaill and several other film stars I will tell you in tomorrow's column . . .

Aprons and smocks will be in charge of Mrs. Horace S. Fraser and Mrs. Walter G. Resor, while Mrs Edward R. Nash and Mrs. James M. Newell will have charge of the fancy goods table. Garden implements will be sold by Mrs Roger Conant Hatch and Miss Louvan W. Hyde. All these tables will have several assistants besides those named.

Club Adds New Executives

The Vincent Club, at its annual spring meeting at the Country Club, elected Mrs. Hamilton Heard of Cambridge second vice-president, and added Mrs. Valentine Hollingsworth of Boston, Miss Helen Homans of Boston and Miss Elizabeth Hovey of Chestnut Hill to its executive committee. Miss Hovey was the retiring second vice-president.

There was no election for president, first vice-president, or secretary, as those officers have another year each to serve, having been elected last year for two-year terms. They are, respectively, Mrs. William C. Cox of Cohasset, Mrs. John Gardner Flint of Chestnut Hill and Mrs. Charles L. Hibbard, Jr., of Boston. Mrs. Flint also is chairman of publicity for another year.

Garden Fete in Jamaica Plain, Brookline

An unusually lovely group of gardens in Brookline and Jamaica Plain will be opened to the publi Friday. This is the second even in a series of "garden afternoon arranged for Tuesdays and Friday in the next fortnight to benefit th Massachusetts Society for the Pr vention of Cruelty to Children.

A fine example of the fashion f rock gardens is exemplified by Mrs. George Shepley at 186 Warren st., Brookline. Her garden and pool will be on view, as well as Mrs. Charles G. Weld's estate at 50 Goddard ave. Mrs. Gaspar G. Bacon is also acting as hostess at 222 Prince st., Jamaica Plain. Her house and garden, one of the oldest in that vicinity, has tremendous charm. Shrubs, flowers and design present a faithful picture of New England gardens in Colonial days.

Mrs. Henry H. Richardson, at 25 Cottage st., Brookline is showing her garden at the same time. Its most striking feature is a large bank of native American wild flowers. Mrs. Richardson has made a study of these plants which are so rarely seen or cultivated in any quantity.

The Misses Emily Perkins, Eleanor Fabyan, Anne Richardson, Julia Jenkins, Anne Peabody and Lucill Swift will be on duty Friday to di rect visitors.

Members of the M. S. P. C. C. Junior Division have been enlisted by Miss Linda Collens, the head usher. They include Mrs. James R. Carter, 2d., Miss Anna Dickson, Miss Isabella Grandin, Mrs. C. BOOKS—and a Number of Things

—By Charles Hanson Towne—

On my occasional rambles along the back roads of Connecticut I have been struck with the fact that few people walk nowadays. Having no motor, I have not the constant temptation to ride which others have; yet I am sure that if I owned a useful little car I would stroll over to a nearby friend's home if I were invited to dine or play bridge. It is a natural habit to get into; but sometimes one wonders if the next generation will have any natural means of locomotion.

Whenever I have suggested, after a telephone message from a kindly neighbor, that I can just as easily reach his house by the simple means of walking there I am greeted with laughter. "Don't be foolish," the laughter seems to say. "Our chauffeur has nothing to do and he might as well come over and fetch you."

The chauffeur has nothing to do! That must be a problem with the well-to-do—how to keep the chauffeur busy. It is a puzzle that I shall never have to solve, thank goodness. Life is so much simpler without having to consider what to do with an idle servant in the garage. A matter like that would be on my poor mind and I fear I might waken in the night and invent some errand for Thomas on the next day in order to have the lonely fellow occupied. That would result, perhaps, in sending him to the village for materials that I do not need; and yet, if one has a chauffeur, I suppose such studies in economy are not necessary.

* * *

There are some woodland trails right at my back door up at "Shingle Blessedness," and I have only to step out of my house to fade away into solitude. The dogwood is late this year, but is shining along many a sequestered path, like Gray's flower born to blush unseen. I am always tempted to gather it and might have done so unless on my last walk I had met two other pedestrians from this neighborhood, and realized that they might like the blossoms to remain where they were, for they bore the easily recognizable stamp of regular ramblers. They carried sticks and wore their oldest clothes, far more becoming to most of us than our city togs.

And they had healthy, smiling faces and bright eyes, and something told me they would prefer our woods to be untouched. (One learns so quickly to say "our" woods.)

I had encountered wild turkeys and stray dogs in these serene woodlands, but never before a human being; and so the meeting was something in the nature of a small adventure. They must have felt the same way, for they seemed too surprised to greet me with the usual country "Good morning," and so we passed one another in silence.

One is "quaint" if he likes to walk nowadays; yet it is true that I feel a certain spiritual comradeship with people who amble in preference to riding; and any guest who is fond of strolling down a lane with me is a far more desirable one than he or she who simply sits in a chair on the porch or craves the curious excitement of racing at sixty miles an hour over a crowded highway.

* * *

As a matter of fact I know only two people who honestly enjoy hiking. They are William Glackens and James Preston, the painters. Once a week, winter and summer, they leave their studios with a sandwich in a pocket and take a train to New Jersey or Long Island or up in the direction of Connecticut, and then make for the hills. There they loiter all day, coming home at dusk.

Not all of us can take our walks thus on week days. We must get our hiking in when we can, in small doses; and sometimes it doesn't seem worth while to stroll for only an hour. Yet I find that one may see a great deal and reap rich reward of meditation on such brief rambles, just as an editor by reading manuscripts at odd moments may accomplish an enormous amount of work.

Arnold Bennett believed in thus adjusting our waking hours and getting the most out of them. If we wait for the proper occasion to do any given thing I have noticed we seldom do it.

* * *

Several years ago, after I had written a little book called "Loafing Down Long Island," I was asked to join a walking club up in Westchester County. But I attended only one gathering of this mixed society; for the moment we alighted from our train in the heart of a beautiful district one of the ladies, who because of her robust figure I had counted upon as an ideal hiking companion, espied a trolley car and insisted upon taking it. And the entire contingent of so-called pedestrians followed her obediently (she was a forceful female) and we soon found ourselves roaring through the countryside on something akin to the Toonerville trolley which Fox has made famous.

Our "walk" consisted of about a half mile on a dusty road; then we trolleyed back to our train—and that was that. The society broke up soon thereafter, I learned, but no individual in it had the heart to form another union with the lady in question coldly eliminated.

But there is a Gipsy Trail Club up in Carmel, N. Y., made up of serious hikers. They have an office at 25 W. 43d st., New York, where information may be obtained. If I didn't have those woods this summer right in my back yard I would be tempted to join it, for it sounds like an association after my own heart. They have 1100 acres of wild land, including Pine Pond, a good-sized lake bordered by a dense hemlock forest and with a mile of navigable outlet, and Mount Ninham, 1426 feet high, and many other advantages.

It sounds enchanting, but Connecticut, too, is full of charm for those who like to be old-fashioned enough to walk.

Rainy Weather Smartness

By DOROTHY ROE

New York, May 18 (US)—Rainy day smartness is something that the bright young designers of today have pulled out of their sleeves.

It's no longer necessary to look like a bedraggled and drab wet hen when the sun doesn't shine.

Witness the new rain clothes.

There's the white raincoat, for instance. We've heard about it from time to time, but it's taking a firm hold on the public fancy just now, and it's being shown now in a waterproofed silk that's too-too lovely.

The newest ones have broad capelet shoulders and military details, just like the smartest spring coats of the season. Others are cut to hang loosely, with raglan sleeves and an air of casual rakishness.

The white raincoat calls for a brilliant little hat—a red beret is good. Or a straw-jersey toque in a vivid color.

White rubbers have appeared, to match the raincoats, and umbrellas have gone doggy too, with handles of carved wood animal heads, "Scotties" being the favorites.

Umbrellas of red or green make gay color contrasts to the new white raincoats, but they are showing white umbrellas, too, for those who must have harmony.

Mrs. Freiman Again Heads Philanthropies

Mrs. Hyman Freiman was reelected chairman of the women's division of the Associated Jewish Philanthropies at the annual meeting yesterday, at Temple Ohabei Shalom, Beacon st., Brookline.

Others elected to office include Mrs. Samuel Altman, Mrs. Carl Dreyfus, Miss Lina Frankenstein, Mrs. Oscar Grosberg, Mrs. Louis E. Kirstein and Mrs. I. K. E. Prager, vice-chairmen; Mrs. David M. Small, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Harry Guterman, recording secretary; Mrs. William Rosnosky, treasurer; Mrs. Aaron Hailparn, assistant treasurer; Mrs. Bessie Abraham and Mrs. Henry Ehrlich, auditors.

Girl About Town

—By ALYCE SIEMENS—

My Telephone:

This mute, unhonored friend of mine,
Is silent, stolid and staunch;
A messenger inglorious
Upon an iron haunch.

Its tongue can tell the tale of years
As a lion or a mouse.
Its heart is hidden behind the black
Of that little house.

Its face is drawn with a heavy brow
Whenever I talk as rue;
But then it smiles a smile from heaven
Whenever I talk with you.
—THEODORE MARIER.

From Our Memo Pad:

Will she wise up and buckle down to help the poor chap through it all . . . Or do a walk out—now that the money's vanished? . . . The chap's brother's bride did that very thing some years back when another Pretty One entered their well known family, rosy with the same gold-spading ideas.

Big Business!

There's a well known music corporation which carries on a big business—for music corporations these days—via long distance phoning . . . For the past six months this company hasn't paid one penny for calls . . . In the Big Chief's Office there are three phones, each with a different number, and all padlocked . . . When there's a deal afoot on the Coast, a wire is sent telling them out there to call their answers over the phone . . . They send numbers of the padlocked phones . . . Then the Big Chief sits down to wait . . . At three o'clock, if the one phone rings, it means "Okay" . . . At three-fifteen, if another rings, it means "Deciding tomorrow" and so on—You can't beat it!

Easy to Rave O'er:

Lester (Newspaper Man) Allen's "Spring in the Sourlands" poem" . . . Kathleen Norris' syndicated story, "Baby Is Anne's Again"—written through hazy, tear-dimmed eyes, remembering the surrendering to Mother Earth of Mrs. Norris' own two tiny tots 18 years ago . . . Brave optimism of the Revere Beach concessioners . . Schraft's strawberry cream pie . . . Eddie Alexander's swell L-st. tan-coating . . . Ruby Newman at Delmonte's on the 28th . . . Louis Sobol's air voice.

Lookin' Thru the Mail:

To Dorchester's Mickey Riseman—Thanks for the invitation for your gold-banding on the 19 . . . We'll try and be there with rice and old shoes!

To "The Alpert Club's" Sec'y—Interesting about your club . . . Thanks for your kind words . . . However we still have our own opinion about Tony "Red Balloon" Wons . . . Although, to those who care about his "poetic dramatics" he must be a swell guy . . . Mickey Alpert and Ranny Weeks are to have a battle of music during the mammoth movie ball to be given June 3, in the Arena . . . They both have fans galore . . . Our greetings to your club . . . Write again.

To Dorchester's M. Trebizon—Try putting a bit more thought into those poems . . . Your last batch, as they are, would take too much going over . . . Sorry.

To Wally Burke—So you call your best girl "Bonfire" . . . We have surmised your yen for poetry-penning was inspired by one of Haverhill's Honeys!

To Revere's Eddie Mayne—Appreciate your encouragement and "comps" . . . Your "Ode to Ethelyn" too long . . . Glad if you'll try again though . . . La Pola was as charming close-up as in the picture of us you mentioned.

To Medford's "Adonais," M. A. Gunnerson, Dedham's Theodore Marier, Dorchester's Ray and Chris Charon, Somerville's Mabel S. Dyer—Your contributions acknowledged . . . If you do not see them used, try again . . . Most of them too long, or lack the punch line finish.

Appears in Marlene's Next

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Motion Picture Editor Universal Service.

Copyright, 1932, Universal Service, Inc.

Los Angeles, May 18—The husband for whom Edna Best left Hollywood is coming here in person. Herbert Marshall, now playing in a successful stage comedy, "There Is Always Juliet," has been signed by Paramount to play opposite Marlene Dietrich.

Louella O. Parsons

What a search was instituted to get a screen husband for Marlene. So much depends upon the right actor, and this time Josef von Sternberg wanted to be sure there would be no lack of proper co-operation. Mr. Marshall rated headlines when his wife left a delectable role opposite Jack Gilbert because she was lonesome for him. But, more important, Mr. Marshall is a good actor and he made many friends in the few pictures in which he has appeared.

Sequel to "Bad Girl"

"Bad Girl" was admittedly one of the Fox Film Co.'s most successful pictures last year. Vina Delmar has written a sequel to it called "Bad Boy." I am not so sure this is such a smart idea at that, for when has a sequel measured up to the original? Sally Eilers and Jimmy Dunn, who became headliners over night in this picture, are being teamed in much the same manner as Janet Gaynor and Charles Farrell have been ballyhooed. "Checkers," the story of a race track, "Walking Down Broadway," already announced for them, will go into production this summer.

A Line or Two

Rumors have circulated in Hollywood that Conrad Nagel and Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer have parted company. This was not only officially denied today but the denials were made stronger by the announcement of a new long-term contract. Conrad will be put to work immediately. He has been out doing personal appearances for a long time.

Elissa Landi

Ken Murray, who has grown to depend upon his cigar as much as Maurice Chevalier depends upon his straw hat, will have to forget his cigar. The part he plays in "Crooners" does not permit him to smoke.

Chatter in Hollywood

Raymond Massey, New York actor and husband of Adrianna Allen, now at Universal directing, is minus the tip of a finger. It happened in one of the worst dog fights the exclusive Santa Monica Beach section has ever witnessed. Justine Johnstone, (Mrs. Walter Wanger), is the owner of two Scotties. According to Justine, they have always been mild-mannered in New York but apparently the California climate has gone to their heads. They took a dislike to Countess Frasso's Sealyham. The Sealyham didn't think so much of the Scotties either. They went to it and when the fond owners of the fighting dogs let out agonized shrieks, Mr. Massey tried to pry them apart. The Sealyham, or maybe it was the Scottie, took a nip out of Mr. Massey's finger, so much so that it was necessary to call a physician to dress the wound. Ruby Keeler had a test made at United Artists that is said to be a wow. You needn't be surprised if she talks Al Jolson into letting her make a picture.

Cohan to Star

"I'm a Yankee Doodle Dandy"—George M. Cohan to you—has been persuaded to become the star of "The Phantom President." He was engaged to write and direct "The Song of the Eagle," but when Herman Mankiewicz and George Wortz wrote a political satire that called for an actor of the Cohan type the script was airmailed him and he agreed to come out here and don the makeup once again. Norman Taurog will direct George M.

Among the Hearst Metrotone News features at Loew's State are the following:

The opening of the yachting season in San Francisco shows scores of craft in the Golden Gate for the first regatta of the year. Little girls of Seville, Spain, are shown in a picturesque dance of honor of the historic Andelusian fete. Cape Cod fishermen are happy over a deluge of herring which have swarmed into all the rivers to breed.

Striking pictures of the nation-wide drive to repeal the dry law show Mrs. John S. Sheppard, New York state chairman of the Women's Organization for National Prohibition Reform, heading a group of her society helpers as they inaugurate Anti-Prohibition Week from the steps of the sub-treasury building.

Leading characters in "State's Attorney," current attraction at the RKO Keith's, are portrayed by well known screen favorites. The film, which stars John Barrymore in one of his greatest roles, is proving such an attraction at Keith's that it is being held over for a second week, starting Friday. There's plenty of action in the film.

Pops Tonight

All seats are taken for the second "Gay 90's" Night which will be given in Symphony Hall tonight. All are invited to wear their old-time clothes. Beer, bicycles and other features of the first night will be repeated, and new ones added. The program follows:

Charge of the Hussars, Spindler; Invitation to the Dance, Weber-Berlioz; Pianoforte Solo (Selected), Jesus Maria Sanroma; Overture to "William Tell," Rossini; 'Cello solo: Jacobus Langendoen; "'S Kommt ein Vogel Geflogen"; variations on a German Folksong, in the Styles of different Masters, Ochs; News Flashes of the Nineties—by magic lantern; waltz, "Jolly Fellows," Vollstedt; selection, "The Fortune Teller," Herbert; "Rocked in the Cradle of the Deep," Knight; Tuba solo: Paul Sidow; popular song hits—"Ta-ra-ra Boom-de-ay," "The Bowery," "The Sidewalks of New York," "Sweet Rosie O'Grady," "Daisy Bell," ("A Bicycle Built for Two"), "Comrades," "Little Annie Rooney," "She May Have Seen Better Days," "The Band Played On," "After the Ball," "A Hot Time in the Old Town Tonight."

Lucky Boys Are Clever Team

America's Own Lucky Boys, who appear at the Metropolitan, starting Friday, as the stars of "Swiss Movements" Idea, call themselves lucky, because so far they've been fortunate enough not to break their necks.

Their admirers hailed them as the world's greatest risley acrobats. The meaning of "risley" is, of course, foot juggling by human beings. It is a difficult form of acrobatics. The Lucky Boys, however, differ from all other exponents of this type of work, in that they perform their feats in comedy style.

One of the outstanding features of their performance is the three-man somersaults, wherein three members of the troupe, locked together, are hurled into the air simultaneously, being thrown from the feet of one man.

Maureen O'Sullivan

Maureen O'Sullivan and Norman Foster have been given the leading roles in "Skyscraper Souls," which is the new title for Faith Baldwin's Cosmopolitan serial, "Skyscraper." Edgar Selwyn will direct the new film.

Pat Always Has a Line Ready

Pat O'Brien admits that, being human, he slips once in a while, although 12 years of training on the stage have made the memorizing of lines comparatively easy for him. When he does slip, however, he never is disconcerted, but usually manages to have at his tongue's tip an apt improvisation that prevents the scene from being ruined.

O'Brien, appearing in Paramount's "The Strange Case of Clara Deane," at the Paramount and Uptown Friday, forgot a line while filming a wedding scene recently with Wynne Gibson, but his quick wit at improvising a substitute line saved the scene. When Louis Gasnier, who was co-directing with Max Marcin, congratulated him, O'Brien said:

"I learned to do that in stock on the stage. My first lesson in such work was rather severe. I was playing in Plainfield, N. J., and in one scene I concealed myself in a trunk from which I could spy on the leading lady. At the end of the scene I was supposed to raise the top of the trunk and get out.

"But one day the top became locked in some way and I could not get out. I thought I would smother and my efforts to break open the top sent the trunk rolling about the stage. I thought, of course, that the scene had been ruined when I heard the leading lady call out: 'Billy, are you a ghost?'

"Yelling at the top of my voice I replied: 'No, but it's only a question of time before I will be.' The leading lady came and unlocked the trunk and I got out. The scene was saved and never since then have I been worried when a line slips my memory."

Film Who's Who

The latest of "Chic" Sale's remarkable "old men" in characterization is to be seen in "When a Fellow Needs a Friend," at the Orpheum, Friday, in which he plays the part of Jackie Cooper's aged but spirited uncle. Charles "Chic" Sale, who in actuality is less than half as old as his expert makeups usually depict him, is a native of Huron, South Dakota. His father was a dentist, but "Chic" had little taste for the parental profession. Following a period of study at Illinois University, he chose to spend the ensuing years on the stage.

Chic Sale

His characterizations became nationally known and Hollywood beckoned. After appearing in a number of short subjects, including "County Seat," "Cowslips," "Ex-Rooster" and "A Slip at the Switch," he was featured in "The Star Witness" and "The Expert."

Virginia Bruce

Virginia Bruce, who was recently signed to a long-term contract by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, will be John Gilbert's leading lady in "Downstairs." Monta Bell will direct "Downstairs," which is an original story written by Gilbert.

Able Cast in "Scarface" at State

By HARRIS MORGAN

"Scarface" comes into Boston. Unscissored by the censors, we are informed. This is the film that Howard Hughes has declared he would not have blue-penciled by anyone; and he has been sturdily fighting to get it by as produced. As an aftermath, following discussion of the point of law-and-order, several sequences were added; and it is this completed picture, we understand, that Manager Joseph H. Brennan will screen at Loew's State next Friday.

The movie, as it follows the Hughes realism in "Hell's Angels" and "The Front Page," should prove a most exciting and thrilling photoplay. Its cast looks good. The title role falls to Paul Muni, an exceedingly able actor, who left the boards to appear in two pictures, and then returned to the footlights.

Ann Dvorak was given the outstanding feminine role. Karen Morley, a clever actress, is in the piece. Osgood Perkins, original "Walter Burns" in "The Front Page," has alternated between stage and screen for years, and has appeared in many pictures.

George Raft, who is said to resemble the late Rudolph Valentino, has tried for years to obtain parts in pictures which might win him recognition. His portrayal of the dapper gunman in "Scarface" won him instant favor with Hollywood producers.

Vince Barnett, for years has been known in Hollywood as the "professional ribber"—appearing at banquets and parties as a paid "insulter" of famous guests. Successful as he was, producers hesitated to give him more than minor parts in their pictures. Producer Hughes gave him one of the prize roles of the year in "Scarface," a comedy impersonation.

6000 VETERANS TO GET JOBS, SAYS MAYOR

If the Legislature acts favorably on the measure, 6000 more war veterans will have jobs by September in two projects involving $40,000,000, Mayor Curley told a delegation of 75 American Legionnaires and Veterans of Foreign Wars at City Hall today.

The statement was made in the mayor's office after the veterans had assembled on the lawn, giving rise to a report that Communists were demanding to see Curley.

TWO BIG PROJECTS

When the three policemen assigned to City Hall learned the mission of the veterans they were asked to go to the mayor's office, and the mayor, seated on the corner of a desk, told them of the projects which had been voted by the Metropolitan Transit Commission even while the veterans were assembling downstairs.

One project would extend the Boylston st. subway in a branch from Arlington station under Huntington ave. to Brookline Village.

The other would extend the subway from Governor sq. to Union sq., Brighton, with another end extension of the rapid transit from Lechmere sq. to Davis sq., Somerville.

The veterans' visit was arranged by Representative Robert Lee of Charlestown.

PLAN FOR RAIL RELIEF FAILS

Washington, May 18 (AP)—Another proposal to give assistance to struggling railroads is about to fall by the wayside for the time being.

It is that portion of the Rayburn Holding Company-Recapture bill that would repeal the law requiring carriers to put into a federal fund half of their earnings over 6 per cent.

Chairman Rayburn of the House Interstate and Foreign Commerce committee suggested repeal of the recapture clause and Interstate Commerce Commission supervision of railroad holding companies.

Both propositions were endorsed and put into one bill. But when Rayburn asked the rules committee to speed the measure it objected to the recapture repeal.

BOOST FEARED IN MILK PRICE

Enactment of legislation setting up a milk regulation board with centralizing of inspection work now performed by local officials will eventually bring about an increase of 5 cents a quart for the product, the Senate ways and means committee was warned today by Cornelius A. Parker, counsel for the Cream Dealers' Association.

Opposing the pending measure, Parker declared the money taken from the milk consuming public would go to a class most prosperous as a whole. This class, he said, is the dairy farmer.

"Many children are going without sufficient milk because there is no money to pay even present prices," he said. "Shall we add to their burdens?"

TIPSY DRIVER IS FINED $160

Hyman H. Kravitz of Havelock st., dorchester, found guilty of operating an automobile while under the influence of liquor, drunkenness and having lottery tickets in his possession, was fined a total of $160 by Judge Devlin in Municipal court today.

Traffic Officers Cornelius Donovan and John P. Sullivan informed the court the defendant not only tipped over the banana cart of Augustus Arena in Hanover st. but that he polluted the fruit when he sprinkled lottery tickets among the bananas.

Kravitz told the court a man he did not know put the pool slips in his car.

Judge Devlin retorted:

"I suppose the same unidentified man put the slips in your pocket."

Lowell Man Heads State Foresters

North Adams, May 18 (AP)—John P. Mahoney of Lowell was elected grand chief ranger today at the closing session of the grand court of Massachusetts Foresters of America.

Other officers included: Martin H. Cassidy of Somerville, grand sub-chief ranger; Cyril A. Errington, Boston, treasurer; William J. Mitchell, Arlington, grand secretary; William A. Thibeault, Spencer, recording secretary, and Joseph W. Cann, Pittsfield, lecturer.

Coolidge Inspects Old Homestead

Plymouth, Vt., May 18 (AP)—Former President Calvin Coolidge arrived here unexpectedly today to inspect the old Coolidge homestead, which is undergoing extensive improvements.

Mr. Coolidge found construction of a two-story ell progressing rapidly. Electricity now illuminates the house in which his father administered the oath of office as President by the glow of oil lamps.

PAY ATTACHED FOR TAX ON HUSBAND'S CAR

This is the 17th in a series of articles exposing the tax collection racket, a form of legalized extortion which is fattening the pockets of constables and victimizing reputable citizens of Massachusetts.

Mrs. Louise Chicopano, of 185 Broadway, Chelsea, reports that she is in the toils of the tax racket. While working to support herself, her little son and an aged aunt, Mrs. Chicopano was threatened with arrest for nonpayment of an excise tax for 1931 which was jumped from $19.75 to $65.

Her pay was attached for $5 a week after she paid $10. She says the ironical feature is that although the car was registered in her name, her husband, from whom she is separated, sold it. Now she is paying the piper. Here is her protest:

"I have been reading the articles in the Boston American. So I had to write to tell you what happened to me May 5. I was working hard in a Chelsea shoe factory when I was called to the office, where I met two officers with a warrant for my arrest for non-payment of an excise tax bill on an auto.

WAGES SMALL

"This bill should have been paid last year, 1931. It was then $19.75. They said they could not find me as I had moved, so now it has been run up to $65 which they demanded or said they would take me to jail.

"Now my husband had this car and sold it and because it was registered in my name I have to pay the bill. I am not living with him and haven't been for a year. Must I pay this bill?

"I had no money as my pay now is very small so they attache it for $5 a week and should I leave my employer they are to get the $5 a week just the same.

"Before they left they demanded $10 out of me, leaving a balance of $55 to be paid by me. That's what I'm up against with an aged aunt and little boy to support.

OFFICERS FRESH

"I think something should be done with these fresh fellows who pounce on people this way. Should I have to pay all this money for no reason at all? What have I got to live on? When they took $10 out of my pay it left me with $5 to pay rent and buy food.

"These men came from Lynn and they were the freshest types I ever met. They certainly were anything but gentlemen to talk to a woman the way they talked to me.

"I didn't shoot or kill anybody. I am just working hard to make a living.

"You may publish this with my name. It is the truth."

A Somerville mother said she forfeited an insurance policy and deprived herself of medical attention to pay excise taxes on her son's automobile.

"I would like to express myself on this taxation matter," she writes. "I have a son 20 years of age who has been out of work eight months. He owns a car which is hardly worth the name it bears, but he received an excise tax on it for $2.15, which I paid.

"That was early last year. Later there came another tax for $3.25 so I sent my boy to City Hall but he could get no satisfaction at all. They told him he must appeal, but he got nowhere.

"We heard no more until May 6 when a demand came for $6 or go to jail. Imagine my feelings as a mother. I went to No. 7 Davis sq., taking with me the proof I had paid it.

"In the course of the year my boy had two cars which perhaps caused a little mixup, but even that did not call for a second tax. When I paid the $6 I asked for a receipt. They kept my receipt for $2.15. The receipt for $6 bore the name of 'M. Austin.'

LOST INSURANCE

"I told them I would have to forfeit my life insurance to pay it but that made no impression at all. Really I am beside myself trying to figure it out. It's a terrible injustice to me and to think I have to deprive myself of even medical attention in my present state of health.

"You may publish my letter but for family reasons kindly do not use my name or address."

Cheston Hagen, 66 Charles st., Mansfield, writes:

"I have been a tax victim. A man came to my house and said I owed $32 on a car tax and that as long as I was not working he would take $27.62. He told me as long as I could not pay it all he would give me till the end of the week to pay or go to jail. His name is Thomas Mara, 181 Morton st., Stoughton. On April 29 I paid $10."

Another instalment on the tax collection racket will be published in the Boston Evening American tomorrow.

Passengers on Burned Ship Took Warning as 'Stunt'

Aden, Arabia, May 18 (AP)—There was such an uproar of gaiety aboard the French motorship Georges Philippar that when the fire bells sounded Monday passengers failed to realize their significance, survivors of the burned vessel declared today.

Shipping agencies officials feared the dead might total 300. The ship burned at sea off Italian Somaliland.

Survivors said all during the homeward voyage from the Far East there had been much gaiety and dancing and when the fire bells rang out the passengers thought it was only another stunt.

The first lifeboat to leave the burning vessel floated for five hours before its occupants were picked up. Two British ships brought 254 survivors here yesterday.

Mlle. Berthe Helbout, a French stewardess, emerged as one of the heroes. She rushed about the blazing liner trying to find the parents of a little girl who had been burned. Her efforts were fruitless. Later the child died in a lifeboat.

After the stewardess had been taken aboard the Mahaud she ministered to burned passengers despite the fact she was suffering from shock and exposure. Now she is a hospital patient.

Prosperity When All Go to Work

Philadelphia, May 18 (AP)—Samuel M. Vauclain, 76, reflects with satisfaction on life as he has seen it and reaffirms optimism over the economic situation.

The Baldwin Locomotive Works chairman said:

"Don't forget it. This country is not in bad shape. We are even in clover compared with other countries, notwithstanding the fact we all are dead broke.

"When everybody makes up his mind to go to work and stop talking about the government supporting him, we will get out of our trouble. God is a just God and the United States is the greatest nation on earth."

600 ATTEND AD CLUB FETE

More than 600 members of the Boston Advertising Club and their guests enjoyed an evening of smart entertainment at the Hotel Statler last night. The occasion was the 27th annual meeting and dinner of the club which followed the elections for the coming year.

The officers of the past year were re-elected for new terms with Carol Swan, as president; Frank Black, treasurer; Herbert Stevens, secretary; Harold MacNamee, first vice-president, and A. B. Hall, second vice-president.

The board of directors was all new and included John L. Brummett, Edward C. Donnolley, Ernest L. Johnson, Walter L. Myers, and John C. Nicodemus, who was also chairman o the dinner committee last night.

Educators to Be Honored at B. U.

Boston University School of Education will hold its last assembly for seniors tomorrow in the school auditorium.

9 MONTHS TERM IN WAGE FRAUD

James W. Coulter of 8 Averton st., Roslindale, a building contractor was sentenced to nine months in the House of Correction today by Judge Cox in Suffolk Superior Court on charges of theft and non-payment of wages.

Court attaches said the sentence on the wage charge was the longest of its kind given here.

Coulter pleaded guilty to stealing $25 from Rachel Schneider of Glendale rd., Roslindale, and to failing to pay wages of $238.

HONOR SLAYING SUSPECTS FLEE

Taunton, May 18—Two men sought for questioning in connection with the murder of John Ruslevic, ex-convict, whose mutilated body was found behind a stone wall in Seekonk, have vanished from their homes near the scene of the slaying.

State Detective Clammey, in charge of the investigation, had ordered Trooper William Smith of Rehoboth barracks to take the men into custody.

When the officer went to their homes he was informed the men had not been seen since the previous night.

Police believe that Ruslevic, who served 12½ years in prison for an attack on a Central Falls girl, may have been slain by relatives or friends of a woman victim.

Motor Strike in Spain

Madrid, May 18 (AP)—A motor transport strike started today throughout Spain except in three provinces. Garages, agencies and accessory shops also were closed. Private automobiles were protected by the government.

BORAH PREDICTS THIRD PARTY IF RELIEF FAILS

Washington, May 18 (AP)—Warning of a possible third party movement unless Congres senacts an unempyloyment relief program before the national conventions was sounded today by Senator Borah.

He told the Senate he could not conceive of the two great parties going to their conventions without having adopted a program for relieving the jobless.

"If anything would call a third party into existence that would," he declared.

Republican Leader Watson promptly gave his personal assurance that the legislative program contempited relief legislation.

"Some legislation along that line must be passed," agreed Watson, "and I think every one concurs in that. There is no disposition so far as I know for Congress to adjourn without enacting the revenue bill, the economy legislation, the appropriation measures and relief."

"That is understood, is it?" asked Borah.

Watson emphasized that so far as he was concerned it was, of course, understood.

Senator Wheeler of Montana interposed to demand further financial relief for the farmers in meeting their mortgages.

Watson said the relief program was being worked out.

WALKER BOND RECORDS GONE

New York, May 18 (AP)—Records of J. A. Sisto & Co. which would disclose the transfer of 33 bonds, valued at more than $25,000, to Mayor James J. Walker by J. A. Sisto, a broker, in November, 1929, are missing from the files of the brokerage house, Samuel Seabury, counsel to the Hofstadter legislative committee, disclosed today at the resumption of public hearings by the committee.

William P. Derby, who was a partner in the firm during 1929, testified the records are "unavailable" and said he knew nothing about the transaction at the time it took place.

The affairs of the Sisto company were handled by the Irving Trust Co., as receiver, from Sept. 30 to Dec. 31, 1931, after suspension of the firm by the New York Stock Exchange.

WAR PORTRAIT CHARGE DENIED

Denial that the set of portraits of Cambridge war dead is lying "in a rubbish heap in the City Hall basement" was made today by William Murphy, custodian of the building in whose care the 140 portraits were placed several years ago.

The charge was made at a meeting of the Cambridge City Council by Councillor Swenson, ex-commander of Cambridge Post, American Legion, who sought additional funds to complete the set.

Murphy today invited inspection of the room in which the portraits are stored. He said that they are carefully wrapped in the original casings.

GIRL TESTIFIES IN LOVE SUIT

She had even bought her trousseau in expectation of marrying him, Miss Lillian Finkelstein, now of Chelsea but formerly of New York, testified today in Superior court in her $50,000 breach of promise suit against Morris Long Clinton clothier.

Today's hearing in the case opend only after a long conference in the lobby of Judge Webster Thayer, with Atty. William Flaherty, counsel for Miss Finkelstein, and Atty. Arthur Gottlieb counsel for Long, present.

When questioning of Miss Finkelstein was resumed, she declared that when she met him, he told her he was "comfortable and could take care of me."

Q.—Did you look up his financial condition? A.—No.

Q. Did you ever try to find out from anybody as to his financial condition? A.—No.

Q.—After the marriage intentions were filed and the discord arose, didn't you tell Mr. Long that you had looked up his financial condition and if he didn't marry you, then you would fox him? A.—No.

Long stated he told Miss Finklestein "there will be trouble in my home" if they were married then.

"I told her it wouldn't be right for her to live wit hthe children and call them the names she did. She said she couldn't put up with 'that bunch,' and then she went to her lawyer," he declares.

Four Women Killed When Train Hits Car

Jonesville, Mich., May 18 (INS)—Four women were killed instantly today when the car in which they were riding was struck by a southbound New York Central passenger train.

The victims were Mrs. Ben Alward, Mrs. Herbert Gibson, Mrs. Floyd Rowe and Mrs. Arthur Haynes. All lived near Camden, Mich.

THIS IS LIFE

LITTLE MRS BOOLE AND THE HARM SHE DOES HER CAUSE BY HER SPITE

By ROBERT E. ROGERS

PROF. ROGERS

NOTHING SUGGESTED by New York's "Beer for Taxation" parade was more interesting than Mrs. Ella Boole's comment upon it. Mrs. Boole, as you know, is the national president of the W. C. T. U. When she was asked by a reporter, who was probably being consciously impertinent, whether she intended to view the parade, she replied "I have no interest in going slumming." And that was that.

I suppose that Mrs. Boole would be very greatly surprised if anyone were to tell her that precisely such remarks as that, and many others of the sort which she and her crowd have been making over the last 12 years, are responsible for a great deal of the growing feeling against prohibition.

The major revolt is, of course, the result of the majority's conviction that any reform which results in such conditions as have become a matter of shameful commonplace in the United States must have something fundamentally wrong with it. The result is that many who are sincerely in sympathy with the ideals of the reformers are convinced that the chosen method of reform has been disastrous.

* * *

Mrs. Boole's Little Job

But sharpening and barbing this rational revolt is the irrational revolt, the feeling of deep resentment at the expressed attitude of the prohibitionists, the scornful and unchristian contempt with which they dismiss all their opponents as unworthy of reasonable refutation.

The "beer parade" was not very important. No amount of parading can really affect the situation. But to dismiss contemptuously a hundred thousand paraders, many of whom were persons of prominence and a million of sympathizing onlookers, as Mrs. Boole did, shows a deep and fatuous misunderstanding of human nature, such as lies at the root of the failure of the 18th Amendment.

To Mrs. Boole humanity is very simply divided into the Children of Darkness and Children of Light. The Children of Light do not drink, do not smoke, do not bet on horse races, are very wary of moving pictures, modern dancing, modern science and philosophy and literature, and belong to the evangelical branch of the Prostestant church. Everybody else is a Child of Darkness, living in an actual or spiritual slum which Mrs. Boole and her kind are going to clean up—if it takes them until the Millennium—and reduce to a state of negative ascetic, and regimented goodness, which never has been, and probably never will be, the chosen way of living of the great majority of human beings.

Mrs. Boole is a pale copy of the Great Francis E. Willard, founder of the W. C. T. U. Thomas Beer, in his "The Mauve Decade," sketches her indirectly in a couple of ancedotes. There was one good woman who used to pray to God and Frances E. Willard to help her. She lived in an atmosphere of adulation, hailed as probably the most perfect woman who had ever lived. This could not have been good for any human being and certainly was not good for Miss Willard. "The affair that Miss Willard is carrying on with Miss Willard," drawled Stephen Crane, "ought to be stopped by the police."

They're Good Will Wreckers

When Rebecca Harding Davis (Richard's mother) made a plea for the poor young women in the cities, whose chances of marriage, congenial work and happiness were so slim, Miss Willard told her gently that the opportunity to work for the W. C. T. U. and to help its glorious cause ought to be sufficient happiness for any woman.

Obviously, there is nothing to be done with this bland complacency, this chorus of mutual admiration, in the face of all evidence; and the amount of good will and co-operation which this attitude of self-assured holiness, sweet and pitying as it is, has destroyed in the American people is beyond calculation.

Many of the more intelligent Drys recognize this. Prof. George C. Cell of Boston University said so frankly t othe Methodists at Atlantic City, the other day. (But why need the devout and godly have gone to Atlantic City, anyway, when there are so many righteous cities eager to receive them in their tabernacles?)

"Today we are literally fighting with our backs to the wall. The Wets have surpassed us in thought and strategy for the past decade. They have outthought us, outgeneraled us, outfought us. Thirteen states can hold the outlawry of the drink traffic in the the Constitution, but 13 states cannot hold the ideal of the temperance movement securely in the hearts of the American people."

* * *

The Evil Good Men Do

The man is talking sense. He is facing a condition. He probably knows in his heart that if prohibition had been kept out of the hands of the W. C. T. U. and its legions, out of the hands of the Unco' Guid who never open their mouths without insulting decent folks, quite as good Christians as themselves, the movement would be faring better than it is today.

The whole question of the reform of the liquor traffic is fundamentally, and always was, a matter of expediency, of things like taxes and economics and compromise with human nature. It was well on its way to being solved, not by kicking human nature in the face, but by humoring it, managing it, using it. And then people like Miss Willard and Mrs. Boole upset the apple cart and ruined their cause, by the insistence that it was a primarily a moral question; that moral and Christian people do not drink (which never was true) and that people who are not moral and Christian have no rights that anybody is bound to respect.

Even St. Paul never went so far as they have gone. He merely said: "If meat maketh my brother to offend, I will eat no flesh while the world standeth." But he said nothing about taking meat away from his brother, still less from all those who deny the relationship. Bertrand Russell once wrote an essay on "The Evil Good Men Do." The wise ones of the world have always recognized that there is real danger in being too good—or rather, in thinking onesself too good. The danger is that other people may not agree with you.

KILEY DEATH STORY IS TOLD

WOMAN LURED INTO CAR AND BEATEN

Somerville Matron's Face Cut by Pair; Victim Told Husband Was Ill

Lured into an automobile by two men who said her estranged husband was ill, Mrs. Ruth Smith, 28, of Walnut st., Somerville, was "taken for a ride" and cruelly beaten, she told police today.

With her face cut and swollen, Mrs. Smith, mother of two children, was found in Dorchester early today outside the home of her sister-in-law on Revere st.

She had gone there by taxi from City sq., Charlestown, she said, after her two captors and two flapper companions left her on the sidewalk after the ride.

"I was walking along Broadway, Somerville, about 8 o'clock last night when a man called 'Ruth' from an automobile," Mrs. Smith said today.

"I went over to the car. They told me my husband was sick and was calling for me.

"I asked them why I should go to him as long as we were separated and one of them said 'Surely you're not going to let him down like this when he's sick.'

"I got in and they drove to Charlestown and picked up the two girls."

Mrs. Smith became suspicious when the men began asking where her husband was. She said they were the ones who had tried to beat him up last fall.

"I was sitting in the front seat and I told the driver to stop, that I wanted to get out. He punched me in the face," she declared.

"Every time I started to talk after that I got a punch in the face.

"The two girls were in back and kept singing at the top of their voices.

"I think it was in Winchester that I jumped out, but they caught me and put me back in the car again.

"Then they drove to City sq. and put me out."

FATE OF KIN IN BALANCE

Joseph Snyder, brother, and Mrs. John S. Snyder, mother of Herman Snyder, one of the pair on trial in East Cambridge court for the gas station killing of James M. Kiley.

VICTIM'S WIDOW HEARS HOW MATE DIED

Statement Made by Donnellon at Trial Denies He Fired Fatal Shot During Holdup

Mrs. Lena Kiley, widow of James M. Kiley, Somerville filling station manager, sat at Middlesex Superior court today and listened with stony face to a dramatic story of the slaying of her husband.

It was the purported version of Kiley's murder as given in a statement by Leo A. Donnellon, co-defendant with Herman Snyder, in the murder trial.

In the statement Donnellon denied [illegible] fatal shot [illegible] Kiley [illegible] the Northern Artery [illegible].

Mrs. Kiley had been called to the [illegible] to identify a photo of her husband, but the [illegible] statement [illegible] was not related to testify.

PLOTTED HOLDUP

She wore a blue [illegible] hat [illegible] and showed no emotion when Police Chief Damery of Somerville repeated the story which he said he got from Donnellon.

Chief Damery said the statement was obtained on a train in the presence of State Detective [illegible] when they were bringing Donnellon back from San Pedro, Cal.

He quoted Donnellon as saying he, Snyder and [illegible] Garrity, who [illegible] had [illegible] the night of [illegible] with the [illegible] of obtaining money [illegible].

"We took a Chevrolet car in St. Botolph st.," Damery quoted Donnellon as saying, "and after some argument Snyder got in. We went to Somerville to the Northern artery.

"We had no particular place in mind, but wanted to get dough. We drove by Kiley's filling station three times while a car was there. When it left we pulled into the station behind it.

HEARD SHOT FIRED

"When I went in the man was at the telephone. He had just put the receiver on the hook and looked at me. I pointed my gun at him and told him to stand still. Kiley walked towards me. I told him again to stand still but he kept coming and I turned to run out. Kiley grabbed me by the collar and tore my shirt and necktie. Then I heard a shot.

"I turned and ran out of the station. I ran a few steps in the wrong direction at first. After we got into the car I felt like beating up Snyder. I asked him 'What did you do that for?'"

The witness testified Donnellon said he had a revolver and Snyder an automatic pistol.

A blackboard demonstration with chalk drawings of the human [illegible] featured the session this afternoon.

TELLS OF DEATH WOUNDS

The [illegible] when Medical Examiner David [illegible] Dow of Cambridge took the stand for cross examination by Atty. Abraham C. Webber.

Webber is counsel for Herman Snyder who with Leo A. Donnellon is on trial for the murder of James M. Kiley, Somerville filling station manager, slain in a holdup in April of 1931.

Warren [illegible], an assistant of Atty. Webber, was used as a [illegible] to describe the course of the fatal bullet because he was about the same height as the slain man.

The purpose of the cross examination was to attempt to change Dr. Dow's direct testimony as to how the death bullet was deflected upward after striking the spine and passed out of the body in the back three inches above the point of entrance.

Interest at the trial centered on the probable appearance as government witnesses of two girls said to be sweethearts of Snyder and Donnellon.

[illegible] witnesses they [illegible] E. Rodgers and Dorothy [illegible] of the Back Bay.

ACTION TO KILL B. & W. BEGINS

A bill to revoke the right of way of the Boston, New York and Worcester Railway from Framingham to Brookline over the new Worcester turnpike was reported today by the joint committee on judiciary.

Action of the committee is in line with the recommendation of Governor Ely in his message to the Legislature which followed a message sent by Lieut.-Gov. Youngman asking that the road's franchise be revoked.

The bill offers the railway company the alternative of petitioning Supreme Court for the appointment of a commission to determine what, if any, damages are collectable.

It also provides that the railway within 21 days after notification by the public works department, must remove all its equipment.

Crowley to Attend Secret Police Parley

Police Superintendent Crowley will leave for New York tonight to attend a secret hearing of the International Police Conference of which he is president, and the International Police Chiefs Association at the Hotel New Yorker.

He said the Lindbergh case would undoubtedly be discussed among other things, including a plan to merge the two organizations. Inspector Paul Crowley, his nephew, will accompany the superintendent.

Zionists Meet June 26

The 11th New England Zionist Convention will be held Saturday, June 26, according to Elihu D. Stone, president of the New England Region.

Saw Visitor in Window Leap, Girl Says in Child Suit

Midnight visits of Benjamin Burns, Salem business man, to the home of Mrs. Lilian A. Wilson, in Ipswich, were described in probate court at Salem today while Burns and his wife sat among the spectators.

Burns called Mrs. Wilson "Toots" and she called him "Babe" and they were often in each others arms, according to Miss Barbara Pickard, 24, a pretty blonde witness from Ipswich.

FIGHT OVER CHILD

The hearing was continued from last week on Edwin O. Wilson's petition for custody of his daughter Lilian, five, who now lives with her mother in Beverly. The Wilsons are divorced, but Burns' alleged attentions to Mrs. Wilson were prior to the divorce. Wilson is an executive in a public utility corporation.

Miss Pickard, who said she was frequently at the Wilson home, testified Burns visited Mrs. Wilson when she was alone and stayed late, and when Wilson was in the hospital for three weeks Burns visited Mrs. Wilson every night for a week.

She said one night when Burns called she saw Mrs. Wilson in pajamas.

JUMPED OUT WINDOW

Once Burns jumped out a window, she said, when Wilson's brother and his wife called. On another night when Burns was there she said Mrs. Wilson scolded her for entering without knocking.

Sylvester White, 24, [illegible] Wilson hired him for $15 [illegible] to shadow his wife and [illegible] he saw Burns at the house many times at late as 4 a. m.

Judge Alden P. White decided to go tomorrow to look over the Ipswich house and to view Mrs. Wilson's present home.

$55,860 STILL DUE FULLER

Massachusetts owes former Gov. Alvan T. Fuller $55,860.20 and he may collect it any time.

That was revealed today by an examination of the state treasurer's files following the letter of Gov. Ely to the former governor in which the present executive charged Fuller posed as serving without compensation.

Form notices have been sent Fuller each year advising him that the checks may be cashed but no reply ever was seen.

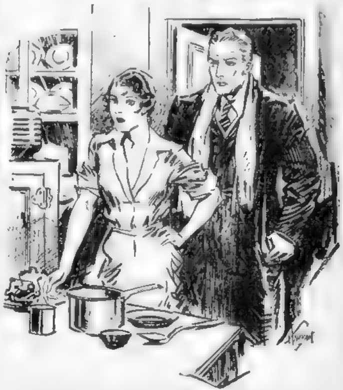
Gov. Ely's [illegible] was made in reply to a statement of former Gov. Fuller that the Ely [illegible] the most expensive [illegible] the State has known.

It all started in a letter that [illegible] Fuller's views on the [illegible] Boston & Worcester Street Railway project.

2 Hurt as Car Hits Tree in Dorchester

Jacob Lyman, 40, of Geneva ave., and Max Dibinsky, 46, of Winston rd., both Dorchester, were injured at Columbia rd. and Seaver st., Dorchester, today when their automobile struck a tree in the street car reservation. They were taken to City Hospital. They said they ran on the reservation to avoid a taxi cab.

First Serious Quarrel Comes Between Bill and Nevis Over a Vacation



"I don't want you slaving over a stove. It's silly, Nevis, you tire yourself out to no purpose," said Bill.

What Has Gone Before

It was taken for granted that Bill Lancaster would enter his father's lead pipe manufacturing business after he graduated from college. However, following his marriage to Nevis Hammond, he leaves the little Pennsylvania town where he was raised and goes to New York to sell bonds. The young couple give a house-warming. Among the guests are Sam Burton, Bill's college chum; Sam's sister, Fluff Waterford, Batch Dorgan, a classmate, and his stage-struck fiancee, Marise Norton. Later, they make a round of the night clubs, and Nevis and Bill return to their topsy-turvy home at 5 a. m. For business reason, Bill entertains lavishly. Nevis is forced to get a maid in order to keep up with his pace. Bill meets the much-discussed Olive Blanchard. Sam warns him against her.

"THEY PIPE DOWN," said [illegible] character and he's some [illegible] that wants to spend all from you." He laughed suddenly, his ill humor evaporating. "I'd have given fifty bucks to have heard him. He has, you know, quite a reputation as a ladies' man."

DOESN'T MEAN HARM

"And you want me to be nice to—that—slug?" she demanded.

"Why not? You can take care of yourself, besides he doesn't mean any harm and it would help me a lot. I wish you'd be nicer to a lot of men I meet in a semi-social way, Nevis. You used to be the 'life of the party,' but darned if you aren't turning out a wet blanket."

"We're spending too much money," she said, abruptly.

"We have to spend in order to get," he reminded her. "I make it as fast as it goes out, don't I?"

"You do. But we haven't a cent put away and we're in debt."

"My credit's good in this man's town," he boasted.

He [illegible] down his glass and [illegible] in the morning, you'll feel better. That punch tonight was pretty [illegible] pressing [illegible] never could stand much."

"If you are implying that I'm tight," she began, weakly trying to steel herself against his charm.

PEEVED AT SOMETHING

"Well, no, a little tighter and you'd feel great," he chuckled. "Come on, there's a honey. You're peeved about something. Anna and Paul? Fire 'em and get some new ones even if you have to pay a premium. I'm sorry Bartlett annoyed you, Nevis. I don't honestly think he means any harm. And I had just as a poor time, honest, listening to his frau coo about moonlight on the Ganges or wherever it was she saw moonlight last. Here, hop aboard. Anchors aweigh."

Nevis permitted herself to be carried upstairs. Bill picked her up without further announcement. At the landing he looked down at her [illegible] face against his shoulder. Pretty strong, [illegible]

[illegible] said Nevis [illegible] But [illegible] a fall [illegible] discomforts. "Pay. We can stand the gaff. What's the use of getting yourself all hot and bothered over this sort of inferior cattle."

TWO JAP SERVANTS

So they paid more and acquired expensive [illegible] efficient Japanese. Two of them. One who cooked and did odd jobs. Bill called the latter "the upstairs girl." He couldn't tell them apart so he named one Ham and the other Kar and enjoyed his silly pun immensely and repeated it to all comers.

He [illegible] a good deal. Nevis [illegible] time on her hands than [illegible] what to do with. She [illegible], she told herself, play [illegible] every day. She could, and [illegible] golf and swim and play tennis. But there was leisure time, nevertheless. Of course, she could always drop in at Olive's or Blanche's or [illegible] or anyone else's for tea and talk, which always turned out to be cocktails and cigarettes and gossip. But she didn't want to day in and day out. It bored her. She thought her figure suffered, and she knew her skin [illegible] she had to go in for costly [illegible] and massages and treatments. She'd never had to before and was, she assured herself, still much too young to begin. She tried staying at home and making new lampshades and embroidering fire screens. Now and then someone would come in and catch her at it and she would find herself as apologetic as if she had been discovered in flagrante delicto."

"Heavens," said Olive languidly to Bill, as he drove her down to Westlynne one late afternoon, "what's wrong with Nevis. She's gone domestic or something. I dropped in there the other afternoon and found her sewing. It

REDS URGE SHIP WORKERS TO FIGHT CUTS

Fore River Officials Charge Vandalism to "That Gang" of Communists

The "Red" menace hovers over the Fore River shipyard in Quincy today, following close[illegible]ly acts of vandalism there as a result of wage cuts.

Placards signed by the "Anti Wage Cut Committee of Fore River Workers" were posted in and about the yards during the early morning hours.

They were branded by General Manager Harry E. D. Gould as a "Communistic move by that gang of Reds from Boston."

In flaming red letters on white background the placards urged workers to organize against wage cuts and attend a mass meeting at Avalon Beach, Quincy Point, tonight.

The force of guards was increased at the plant today to prevent any more attempts at destruction that have been allegedly visited on ships under construction there.

JANITOR CARRIES OUT ONE

James M. Roche, custodian of the apartment building at 74 Canterbury st., Dorchester, and Gerald Goodman, four months old, whom he rescued when fire threatened the house early today. Another baby was carried out and several persons fled. (Staff photo.)

FLAMES RAZE 3 ICE HOUSES

Two fires early today destroy[illegible] [illegible] Natick.

Damage of $15,000 was caused when fire destroyed a large ice house on Dug pond, Natick, John Hill, the owner, estimated.

Two ice houses of the Hill and Nantucket Ice Company [illegible] were destroyed [illegible]

Firemen from Natick [illegible] and Wellesley battled the fire in Natick while [illegible] were rescued from the Hill plant.

Embers carried for more than a mile across the pond [illegible] the camp of Henry G. Kleinfelder, off West st. While firemen from Natick and Wellesley battled this blaze another fire broke out in the [illegible] bordering Memorial Park, and a third fire broke out in the woodland near the home of Charles E. Homsy, 200 South Main st.

[illegible] the fire was of incendiary origin. This was the fifth icehouse fire in the Framingham-Natick district in six weeks.

In Hingham many dwelling houses were threatened when fire raged through [illegible] near K[illegible] st. The cause or damage had not been determined early today.

Plan Boston Part in Palestine Drive

Plans for the completion of the American Palestine campaign [illegible] a full Boston quota were discussed in the home of Judge Jacob J. Kaplan of Jamaica Plain, chairman of the Greater Boston committee. Ways and means were devised to reach all who have not yet contributed to the campaign.

Daily meetings of the committee will take place in the Province st. headquarters until the campaign closes.

Saugus Lawn Stolen After Stone Wall Vanishes

Charles Stillings of [illegible] [illegible] Chief [illegible] of lawn running about the rear of his house was deftly cut and removed to the extent of about two team loads. Not a clue was left behind.

LIEUT.-COL. JOHN C. MOORE MAJ.-GEN. IRVING CARR

Maj.-Gen. Irving Carr, greeted at South Station today by Lieut.-Col. John C. Moore. He inspected the R. O. T. C. signal corps unit at Technology, visited the Harvard Business School and inspected the signal installation system at Fort Devens, proceeding then to the army base.

SAFE ROBBERS ROUNDED UP

A roundup of paroled safecrackers was ordered by Police Supt. Crowley today, following the latest break that netted thieves $1000 in Roxbury during the night.

The order was prompted by a safe break in the office of the Merchants Towel Supply Co., 59 Norfolk ave., Roxbury.

Several punches and [illegible] were found on the floor but absence of fingerprints convinced police that the gang wore gloves.

Crowley repeated a suggestion to business men that a light be kept burning over safes so patrolmen may see them from the street.

Medford Trust Pays $519,000 to About 13,000 Persons

Almost 13,000 persons in Medford and vicinity today received $519,3[illegible].88, representing the first payment to depositors of the closed Medford Trust Co.

This sum is 15 per cent of the deposits in the savings department on which proof of claim has been made.

The payment made to 12,914 persons marks a new record in speed in paying dividends by a closed bank. The bank closed October 7, last, and the first dividend was sent out yesterday, seven months and 10 days later. The best previous record was nine months.

THIEVES WRECK CAR, ESCAPE

Police of the Athens st. station, South Boston, are today hunting two auto thieves who made their escape from a stolen car after a thrilling chase through streets of South Boston by a lone Dorchester motorcycle officer last night.

Patrolman John Connors sighted the car reported stolen from Louis S[illegible] of Boxton st., Dorchester.

After the car failed to stop at his command Connors gave chase down Dorchester ave., to Columbia rd., and into Mt. Vernon st. When the men tried to turn down Roseclair st., they lost control of the car, drove over the sidewalk and smashed into the foundation of a three story house.

Part of the foundation was torn away from the house and the car was demolished. The thieves escaped before Connors reached the scene.

Somerville Boy Cheats Death in Fall

James Quigley, nine, of James st., Somerville, escaped serious injury today when he fell 25 feet from the abutment on the Medford street bridge near Winter Hill station to the railroad tracks. At Central Hospital it was found his only injury was a broken collar bone.

JOHNNY WILSON AND 5 FREED

Johnny Wilson, former middleweight boxing champion; Joseph Del Grosso, Revere night club proprietor, and four other men were arrested in Springfield early today and released a few hours later.

Six policemen seized them in a [illegible] after Deputy Chief John P. Flemming had become suspicious of their activities.

Wilson, Del Grosso and Pasquale Del Grecco, a third member of the group, gave an address in Broadway, Revere, the address of the Revere Country Club, which was wrecked by police in March after Lieut. Carroll Davis and Patrolman Daniel Sullivan had been beaten there.

The other three were Anthony Santanello, 28, of Boston, no street address, Leo Santanello, 19, of Springfield, and Frank Seibesh, 20, of Springfield.

BABIES SAVED IN DORCHESTER

Two babies, four months and two years, were rescued from fire early today when six families were driven to the street from the apartments at 74 Canterbury st., Dorchester.

Gerald Goodman, four months, asleep in a crib, was carried to safety by James M. Roche, custodian of the building.

Leonard Goodman, 2, brother of Gerald, was carried out by his father, Benjamin Goodman, occupant of an apartment on the second floor.

The blaze started on the third floor in an unoccupied apartment. It had worked to the second and part way to the first floors before it was discovered.

Frances Gilman, 8, occupant of the third floor on the other side of the house, aroused many of the occupants of the building after she was awakened by smoke. Damage was estimated at $2500.

Big Mayo Mike Calls. Asks About Sheridan. The Missing 36 Eggs. ↕ Mulderrig Off Tunney. So Are All Mayo Men. Gene Got Their Goat.

High Hatting Webb Footers Is "Bad Cess"

"Tis [illegible] do be telling me," said Big Mike Mulderrig, the captain [illegible] champion Mayo football team, which plays here at Dilboy [illegible] next Sunday, as he eased his more than 6 feet [illegible] pounds of Gaelic beef and bone into a creaking office chair, "that Martin Sheridan, the old world's all around champion and Olympian who came from my own home in little Bohola, once ate three dozen eggs at one sitting. Of course, in Grecian mythology they tell a better one than that, an' how Milo, the wrestler, used to consume a whole ox at one sitting. But begorrah, that's the blarney. I am told that the immortal Sheridan really did accomplish the gastronomic feat and there were plenty of witnesses to vouch for it. Sure, when I was in New York, Liam O'Shea, may the devil fly away with the roof of the house of the man who does him harm, told me that you was present yourself and will vouch for it."

ALL THAT WAS LEFT OF 36 EGGS!
"A PLEASANT LITTLE APPETIZER"
A CALL FOR VOLUNTEERS!
MARTIN SHERIDAN

Indeed I will, Mike, even if I did once tell it before in this column. It was some of the eggs that were intended for me that Martin wrapped himself around. Though we were pals and friends for 20 years that's one thing I never forgave Martin. We were training at Celtic Park. It was on a Sunday morning and Martin had just come back from early mass and communion and was as hungry as a pack of wolves. John Flanagan, Big Bill Horr, Tiny Maxwell, Con Walsh, Lee Talbott, George Bonhag, Harvey Cohn, John Daly, all the boys, in fact, were good eaters, as well as Sheridan. Following fruit and cereal the chef as usual brought in a big platter containing an omelette made of 36 eggs, for each of the boys to help himself to what he wanted. Just as the omelette was brought in a dog fight started outside and all except Sheridan jumped up from the table. It took a few minutes to separate the combatants and wash one of them. When we returned to the table the omelette was gone. Martin Sheridan sat there, napkin tucked under his chin, empty platter in front of him, waiting for the rest of the meal to be brought in. When we looked askance at the empty omelette platter Martin wiped his lips and remarked:

"Be-dad, that was a pleasant little appetizer, lads. [illegible] Waiter! Where the [illegible] and chops?"

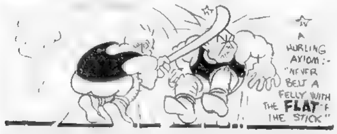
Big Mike boomed forth a real peal of Celtic laughter and remarked that the immortal Sheridan was a man after his own heart. The smile left his face, however, when we innocently asked whether Gene Tunney, whose father was Mayo born, had called upon Tom Tunney, his cousin, who is a member of the Mayo champions, when the team was in New York. Big Mike answered that Gene was conspicuous by his absence, but that the champion's borther, Detective Tom Tunney, was on hand to welcome his namesake. Mulderrig seemed strangely reticent about the champion. Another Mayoman was not. "Bad cess to Tunney," he says. It seems that a slight or a fancied slight by the champion turned Mayo against him. You can't high hat a Web Footer. Don't they all come of a line of Irish kings?

Remembering the visit of that other son of Mayo, James J. Corbett, to his father's birthplace, the Mayo men, upon learning that Tunney was in Dublin, only 150 miles away, sent a delegation there to invite him to visit his father's birthplace. What happened best can be told in the words of Dan Parker. Here's Dan on the air, now:

"The head of the delegation did the talking when the committee was finally ushered into the royal presence. The Irish aren't used to rushing things, so the chairman made a nice little speech, while Gene kept frowning and looking at his wrist watch. Finally when the chairman had reached the part of his speech which related how Brian Borou's team chased the Danes into Galway with their hurling sticks, Gene cut in by saying, 'Come, come, my dear fellow. Get to the point. I am a busy man. Why all this circumlocution?'

"The chairman, his nice speech wrecked, stammered out an invitation to Gene to visit the place of his father's birth. Gene shook his head. "It's impossible," he said. So the Mayo men went back home, their pride sorely wounded at what they considered an affront, and they've been off Mister Tunney ever since."

As one Mayo man [illegible] Gene is a [illegible]



A HURLING AXIOM:- "NEVER BELT A FELLY WITH THE FLAT OF THE STICK"

Mulderrig thought it was too bad that next Sunday's big game could not be preceded by a hurling match, as was last Sunday's in New York. Here in Boston they don't allow hurling on municipal fields, for it tears up the turf. "Martin Sheridan was a great hurling fan," remarked Mulderrig. We told him how Sheridan laughed one evening coming home from a hurling match between Tipperary and Limerick at Celtic Park, New York, over the remark of one of the "Tips," who sat opposite us on the dinky little trolley car that used to run from Celtic Park to the 34th st. ferry. One "Tip" started to bemoan the loss of the match, but was accused by the other of being responsible for the defeat.

"Bedad, and with my own eyes," he roared, "didn't I see ye hittin' a felly with the flat of your stick instid of the edge of it!"

Tom Burke, according to Mulderrig, will guard the Mayo goal on Sunday. Jack Moran, the regular goal guardian, got a couple of ribs smashed in last week's game in New York. It's a nice, quiet, gentle like pastime, is this Gaelic football. Sean Lavan, the Olympic 100 meter man, who plays forward for the Mayo men, may be among the missing, too, for Sean has come down with a flock of boils. But being a medico himself, he may cure himself of them before game time.

Nurmi Disregards Ban; to Race in Finland May 27

Helsingfors, May 18 (I.S.)—Finland today awaited action by the International Amateur Athletic Federation, meeting shortly in Stockholm, to determine finally the amateur or professional status of Paavo Nurmi, distance runner.

Finnish authorities are certain Nurmi's name will be cleared of charges of professionalism.

Nurmi is running here in a big athletic meet on May 27.

Powers' Homer Wins for Morgan Nine

The Morgan Furniture Baseball team opened its 1932 season by defeating the strong Atlantic & Pacific Tea Co. nine at McConnell Park, Savin Hill, by the score of 4 to 2.

Entering the final inning of the game with the score deadlocked at 2 to 2, Capt. Powers of the Morgan Furniture team connected with one of George's offerings for a terrific smash into left field, which was good for a home run, scoring one of his team-mates on base, and ending the ball game.

JOHN ALLEN GEO. PIPGRAS RED RUFFING VERNON GOMEZ

THEY TIED A SHUTOUT RECORD

BRIDGING a span of 28 years these four mound experts took a place alongside a quartet of hurlers of a great Cleveland team to share an American League record of four successive shutouts. The Yankee pitchers are John Allen, George Pipgras, Red Ruffing and Vernon Gomez. Averill's homer in Tuesday's game robbed the Yanks of a chance to set a new mark. Cleveland set record 28 years ago.

FUGITIVE STUMBLES BUT WINS

Mr. Boston

[illegible] championship. Fuller licked [illegible] in this city, but it was [illegible] trick overweight [illegible]

PERSONALLY I believe Boston is the proper spot for a Canzoneri-Fuller title tussle. Fifteen-round matches are allowed here. It would be a stand out attraction for New England and would draw $100,000 if properly promoted. In New York, it would be just another title contest.

Fuller was in perfect condition when he left for New York to battle Berg. The last tussle between this pair ended in a 10-round draw. With two extra rounds this time, each of the boys looks for a decisive result.

If [illegible] Charley [illegible] Arena tomorrow night [illegible] Henri DeGlane, Gus Sonnenberg, Nick [illegible] Ed George. He will go [illegible]

MINOR LEAGUES HARD HIT BY WEATHER

New York, May 18 (AP)—[illegible] hit by unfavorable weather and the general economic situation, baseball's minor leagues plan a conference national in scope, late this [illegible] to discuss ways and means [illegible] N. Y., May 2[illegible] permit the minors to weather the storm.

The Daily Dozen

— By Myles T. McSweeney —

In New York [illegible]

The scoreboard hits us as inadequate. There is no provision made for runs, hits and errors.

And who ever saw a boxing [illegible] be scored like a baseball game?

Especially as regards runs and errors.

[illegible] should have been [illegible] bases in [illegible] Chicago [illegible]

And Dempsey should have had an error chalked up against him in the same bout for not moving into a neutral corner.

Judging from some of the bouts we've seen, a lot of promoters should be awarded 1000 per cent in the error column.

There ought to be a place in the new scoreboard to list the number of sitters.

It might help the circus statisticians.

The only trouble with the new scoreboard is that fighters who [illegible] break, may attack the judges.

That might make some fights at least interesting.

Hit him again! His father is a referee.

Charley Gordon will drop the curtain on his Mechanics Building wrestling shows tonight when Ted Germaine of South Boston, world's [illegible], will defend his title against George Myerson, New England champion, in a best two falls out of three match. There will be a one hour time limit.

Gordon will move his grapplers into Fenway Park on June 15. He will stage weekly shows on Wednesday nights through the summer.

Myerson gave Germaine plenty of opposition last week, and has an idea he will come through with a victory this time.

In another main bout, Paul Adams, Southern football star, will try to knock off Bill Rudy, middleweight champion of Maine.

Steve Passas of Hartford will oppose Bill Brooks of this city in the semifinal which will be a one fall match with a 30-minute limit.

There will be seven prelims. The [illegible] together Jim Wallis of Holy Cross and Al [illegible] of Texas.

HORTON CHOICE

PLAYS GREEN ACE IN NET FINALE

Al Horton of Williams College defending champion, is favored to retain his New England intercollegiate lawn tennis crown by defeating John Richardson of Dartmouth, 1930 champ, at the Longwood Cricket Club courts this afternoon.

Horton, un-seeded through a mix up in entries, is meeting the top seeded player in the tournament today, but the Longwood experts feel that the Williams player can down his capable opponent.

Richardson, playing with Arthur Noble, will carry the Green into the doubles final, for which the Amherst pair, Bruce Bielaski and Louis Whitehead, also qualified.

Richardson downed Frederick Warnock of Wesleyan to gain the singles semifinals. Then, with Noble he defeated Horton and his partner, the Williams' captain, Dan Dewey, in a five-set match.

After that he had to beat Frank Koerner of Tech, the fourth seeded player, in an afternoon semifinal.

Horton didn't have to play an extra singles match in the morning but was up against tough opposition in his singles semifinal which he won over John Talbot of Wesleyan.

How I Got My Start In Baseball

By JOHNNY REDER
(Red Sox First Baseman)
As Told to Joe Cashman

Friends refused to let me stay out of pro ball.

I was content on the sandlots of Fall River, my home town, when I received a summons from the Harrisburg, Pa., club of the New York-Penn League back in 1930.

Johnny Reder

[illegible] Fall River boy who pitched for the [illegible] last season, was responsible for that summons. He had seen me play a few years before and urged the Harrisburg management to give me a trial.

From there I was sent to [illegible] in the New England League and when that circuit broke up I was a free agent again.

Last summer Dr. Harris, head of the State Hospital at Taunton and another friend of mine, organized a club. He insisted that I play for him.

Accepting that offer paved the way for me to enter the big leagues. Dr. Harris was impressed by my playing and persuaded President Bob Quinn of the Red Sox to sign me up.

Nichols Turns Down Bout With Maxie

New York, May 18 (AP)—That scheduled battle between Maxie Rosenbloom and George Nichols which was to settle all disputes over the light heavyweight championship seems definitely off.

Nichols, Buffalo youth, who recently won National Boxing Association recognition as 175-pound title holder, was informed the New York State Athletic Commission he can't accept [illegible] with Rosenbloom, whose claims to the crown are backed by the state commission. Nichols said he had 10 or 12 bouts lined up and was not interested in meeting Rosenbloom, at least at this time.

Diamond Dust

By JOE CASHMAN

Cleveland scored a run in the first inning to end the Yankees' [illegible] record mark of having held opponents scoreless for 41 innings, but the McCarthymen hung up their eighth straight victory by a score of 3 to 2. Johnny Allen, who hurled the first of the four straight shutouts hung up by the New Yorks, did the finishing.

The victory increased the Yanks' lead in the American League race by a full game as the St. Louis Browns turned in their third straight win over the second-place Senators. Funny the way the [illegible] City entry can beat the Solons. Two years ago the Killefer crew cost the Griffmen the pennant.

Hugh Duffy

Hughie Duffy's all time high batting average of .438 is going to be wiped out unless a few pitchers discover how to stop Jimmy Foxx. The Athletics' [illegible] collected three hits in four times [illegible] to boost his average well over .400 while [illegible] was holding the Tigers to four hits and blanking them [illegible].

The Cubs gained a full game on the Pirates and increased their National League lead to [illegible] games by [illegible] the Phils into camp again 3 to 2. The [illegible] came from behind [illegible] eight run [illegible] seven hits [illegible] off the [illegible].

The [illegible] third-place Red Sox also picked up a game on the Warriors by turning in their second win [illegible] over the [illegible] by a score of 2 to 1.

The setback knocked the McGrawmen to within a game of the last-place Pirates who came through with a 3 to 1 victory over the faltering sixth-place Dodgers from Brooklyn.

Milt Gaston, former Red Sox hurler, who pitched against them for the White Sox in the third game of the current series at the Fens, had four assists and each of them started a double play.

The Voice of Broadway

By Louis Sobol

An unusual demonstration, the Beer parade that crowded the principal streets of Manhattan all day and most of the night Saturday . . . Too thoroughly covered by the newspapers to invite much space here, but what impressed me was the "I'm a Crusader" look on the faces of the older men in line . . . I came away somehow with the impression that I'd just seen one of those newsreel movies of mob scenes in Trafalgar Square, London . . . There were no riots of course, and most of the participants and the spectators seemed to take the whole thing good-naturedly . . . As a matter of fact, it seems almost impossible to associate seriousness with anything as cheer-inducing as good old-fashioned beer, but I can't help think how many crimes have been committed because of this same genial beverage . . . The Beer parade festivities lingered on in the principal hotels in town—particularly at the Pierre at the weekly Saturday night Pierrette affair—with a German band and steins on the table to carry on the spirit . . . Peggy Hopkins Joyce was there—with John McClain, a newspaperman who's been escorting the lass everywhere lately . . . As if to refute my own report that they were at odds following their verbal tilt at the Central Park Casino the other night, Lupe Velez and Bert Taylor were [illegible] in a more tender mood toward each other, which of course [illegible] right in my place . . . The [illegible] Grace Brinkley and [illegible] carried on their recently developed romance [illegible] manner and the gay [illegible] the enticing Sally O'Neil seemed engrossed in Peter Arno.

Something I noticed several times . . . At 46th and Broadway an elderly woman—about 50, I should say—stands at the curb and shoos away any cabs or autos trying to park there . . . The chauffeurs drive off meekly, rarely arguing and then, if you wait around, you'll see one of those Coney Island buses pull up and park . . . The woman, I've learned, stands at the spot just for the purpose of keeping the space clear for the bus—and she does her job thoroughly . . . Tuesday night, at the St. Regis Roof . . Alyce Siemens, columnist for the Boston American, studies the placid, black-haired Vincent Lopez as he leads his orchestra with just a suspicion of a smile on his lips . . . A romance between these two that's going ahead in great leaps and strides . . . Guest of Honor at Big Dinner

On the Air

Radio is about to install a new branch of service—that of the kisser . . . Sound effects have failed; hereafter b'dcasters will use the real thing.

Henceforth when you hear a kiss on the air it won't be a pair of [illegible] but the noise of a he and a she [illegible] for the sake of [illegible].

The salary of the kisser hasn't been determined yet, but there's talk of making him pay for working . . . Imagine the riot that'll result when NBC calls for auditions for kissers!

[illegible] will shift [illegible] ahead to 10 p. m. each Mon. and Thurs. starting [illegible], which means Alex Gray [illegible] on the 10.30 spot and [illegible] changed to 10 early in June . . . Herbert Marsh and orch start a WNAC series at 10.30 this eve with music picked up from the Westminster . . . Meanwhile Mickey Alpert is fishing at Hol[illegible] . . . PETITION

TO THE CONGRESS OF THE UNITED STATES:

We, the undersigned citizens, believing that a Prosperity Loan bond issue of $5,000,000,000 for needed public works is the only economical, sound and certain relief for the unemployment problem, the only sure and quick way to relieve the business depression, and avoid greater suffering throughout the nation in this crisis, do hereby petition the Congress to enact the necessary legislation immediately.

(Circulate among your friends, and at meetings. When filled return to Petition Editor, Boston Evening American, Boston, Mass.)

Nevis Fears They Ride to a Fall

isn't, I trust, a little stranger in the offing? Or if it is, she's gone mad to want to dress it in peach chiffon."

OLIVE DROVE WITH BILL

Olive drove down w[illegible] or often [illegible] to town by train [illegible] their [illegible] chauffeur [illegible] of phoning [illegible] Bill. I'm up here, alone. No, I didn't drive up. But I can't endure the thought of going back by train. Can I meet you somewhere?"

When Hart took a day off N[illegible] am[illegible] what she [illegible] if they [illegible] She [illegible] chan[illegible] me[illegible] marked [illegible] And me[illegible] untidy as [illegible] to show [illegible] him [illegible]

"A feast for Belshazzar awaits you, milord."

But he [illegible]

He gr[illegible] once.

"I wish you wouldn't. It looks as if we were up against it or something. We can go out to the club for dinner when the [illegible] out. I don't want you slaving over a stove. It's silly, Nevis. You tire yourself out to no purpose."

She [illegible] He [illegible] retort[illegible] do [illegible] counter [illegible] other [illegible] he thought [illegible]

BETTER PLEASED

He was better [illegible] when he came home and [illegible] wasn't [illegible] when he [illegible] to [illegible] her, cheerfully [illegible] and winding up [illegible] house or [illegible] feminine [illegible] from the bridge tables [illegible] up the steps [illegible] is missing. Have [illegible] seen her? Small, dark [illegible] ankle and a [illegible] Oh, there you are [illegible] you'd [illegible] hostess. I [illegible] make it [illegible] of fizz in it [illegible] what's the [illegible]

Yes, he liked that he [illegible] find her in a group of pretty, well-dressed [illegible] as pretty, as well-dressed, as idle as any of them.

Then too, going home was just going home, while going somewhere else is an adventure. And his appearance was the signal for fluttered dove-cotes. Women who have been alone all day, doing nothing and very little of that, looking at one another for entertainment and trying to get a word in edgewise are always on welcome committees when it comes to a personable man.

That was the life, though. F[illegible] a hard day's work at the office, a couple of hours off for lunch, a drive home through the traffic to your own bit of land and at the end of your trip a flock of pretty women to make a fuss over you, and all the time your secret knowledge that none of them could hold a candle to your own girl.

Half a dozen times a month he said to Sam Burton, "Boy, if it hadn't been for you, I'd probably be making lead pipe and liking it. What a thought!"

"Ain't it the truth?" grinned Sam, as proud of Bill and his prowess as if he had created him.

DEFINITE CHARM

There was, however, nothing very startling about Bill Lancaster's success. He had definite charm and personality, and a belief in his star which lent him a generous, but never arrogant, self-confidence. He was seemingly without worries. He behaved as if he hadn't a care in the world. As if he had been born rich and successful. And as most people take a man at his own valuation it had worked. The business with which he was connected must be good, they argued, if it could provide him with so excellent a living. He dressed very well, he belonged to good clubs, he was a generous and free, if never ostentatious, spender. Ergo, he must have Big Backing. He entertained delightfully, his wife was pretty and attractive and her clothes stacked up with the clothes of other women whose husbands were known to be more than successful. Besides, Bill had connections. He was still something of a legend among classmates and undergraduates and alumni. They hadn't forgotten Big Bill Lancaster. And he brought to his salesmanship much of his football methods, dogged determination, belief in ultimate victory, and now and then a spectacular play which arrested the attention of the man he was trying to land. All this shot through with his engaging grin, his deference to older men which never made them feel old, yet upheld the dignity [illegible] his willingness to listen and to be contradicted, his patience at explaining and, when he lost, his entire good humor.

And so, when Nevis said, wearily:

"Why do we have to throw a party for the Marvins? You know perfectly well, Bill Lancaster, that man is so rotten I'd hate to have him sit at my table and use the same glasses and silver we use. And as for his wife!"

He answered: "Don't be small town, Nevis. This is business. Forget your scruples. Can't you help me a little bit? Don't you want to?"

Well, of course, put like that. But it rankled. She said to Della, once, "Bill says I'm small town." And Della responded amiably, "Well, aren't we all?"

Della was going to have a baby. She was astonished and enchanted. Olive asked, with distaste: "My dear, how could you?" and Della answered, giggling: "You'd be surprised. Has no one ever told you the Facts of Life, Olive?"

Mort was beaming and complacent. Della said, a little defiant, for it appeared that one had to explain oneself in such circumstances to one's friends:

"Well, why shouldn't we have a baby? We planned this one. A boy with my eyes and Mort's nose—he has a nice nose—and no hair at all, for a while. I'm young and healthy and so is Mort, and we have plenty of money."

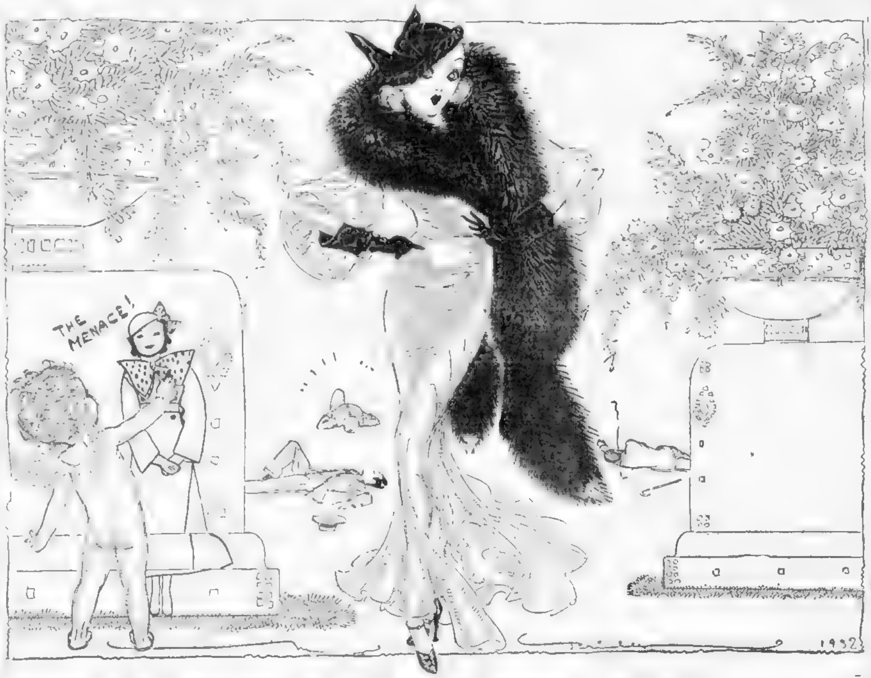
Bill's personality gives him success. Will it last? Don't miss tomorrow's installment.

DRESSED TO KILL

Drawn by Nell Brinkley



It is quite [illegible] a young man. A [illegible] young man. You know! Not too good-looking to be [illegible]. Not too [illegible]. Not too distinguished. But a [illegible] of [illegible] of things out [illegible] of these three ingredients.

Seeing a [illegible] very young feminine person, beautiful [illegible] a moonlight night in June, hair like a satin ribbon, and [illegible] perfect makeup, a royal manner, wide eyes as beautiful as eyes come (and conscious of it), a frock from [illegible] artist's notebook, the nobility of silver-fox furs, and a French hat could make her, seeing this creature come swimming along, the aforesaid young man delivered a speech for the ears of this writer.

"DRESSED TO KILL," quoth he. "And I wonder how many [illegible] there are to the credit of such [illegible]. Does the very epitome of decoration and grooming work such havoc in a man's breast? I'd like to know. [illegible] me it doesn't. Just to look at—marvelous, like the [illegible] by Cellini in the Museum. The workmanship and the technique I marvel at. But my heart isn't damaged.

"The real Siren in my life and I think in the life of the average chap, is this demure, happy-looking, neat young woman turned out simply, almost childishly, that infests the landscape with her insidious, not obvious 'harm.' She's the menace. What a rent she makes in a fellow's heart. What a chronic ailment she can grow to be! And her power lasts.

"If I were Cupid and making a picture of a true heart-tearer, that's the young lady I'd draw. If I could draw."

. . . So we, Cupid and I, drew it for him.

Variety of Symptoms Shown in Gland Diseases

By Dr. R. S. COPELAND

GOITRE is the general name applied to all enlargements of the thyroid gland. There are several varieties grouped under this heading and they have various widely different symptoms.

Dr. Copeland

Young girls at the very beginning of adolescence often show marked enlargement of the neck. This condition is most frequent in the delicate and undernourished and especially common when the person has been subject to anxiety and overstrain. This form of goitre often shows no symptoms other than the unsightly enlargement of the neck.

While this simple goitre does not usually produce nervousness or loss of weight, a more serious form of disturbance may sometimes develop. Often goitre disappears when the patient reaches the age of twenty five years, particularly if the health can be improved and the environment is favorable to rest and nerve repose.

Insufficient thyroid secretion may occur in adults between the ages of 30 and 50 years. The symptoms are anemia, loss of strength, vague pains accompanied by a harsh, dry skin, dry and brittle hair, mental torpor, and various other symptoms that may be recognized by a physician. Treatment consists of replacing the diminished secretion of the gland and often results in wonderful improvement.

In exophthalmic goitre the eyes became prominent, the heart action is increased and nervous irritability is marked. Fatigue develops after only slight exertion. The treatment for this form of goitre is surgical, because the secretion of the thyroid is not only increased in amount but is toxic in its quality.

Timely Fashion Suggestions

A SLIGHT LINE of demarcation marks the formal evening costume from the informal one. A smart informal costume is a frock of black satin with bishop sleeves pailletted in black jet. With it is worn a short-sleeved, collarless ermine jacket and an evening hat of the satin.

A WELCOME novelty comes in the form of a white chiffon evening frock with a waistdeep back decolletage and covered shoulders. There is a kerchief drapery that does this duty, and jeweled clasps hold the kerchief on one shoulder. A bracelet of large shaded pink roses is worn with the dress.

Hints for the Household

WHEN boiling a suet pudding, put three or four pieces of orange peel in the water. They will collect all the grease, and the pudding will boil quicker and will be much lighter.

SOUR milk makes cakes, puddings, scones and omelets very light.

IVORY piano keys may be kept white by an occasional rubbing with a cloth moistened in warm milk. If the keys have become discolored, spread a paste of whitening and potash over them and remove when dry.

Daily True Story

Mary Finds Romance

MARY McGOVERN paused for a moment in her counting and gazed out through the restaurant window on the riotous incandescence of Broadway.

It made her own lot seem drab in comparison. Cashiering in the restaurant from noon until 9 . . . then uptown in the subway to her furnished room. She had no friends in the city.

As Mary's glance left the window she met the eyes of a dark haired young man seated at the door. She gave him an icy stare.

She put the young man out of her mind and began counting a sheaf of bills.

Mary thought it was just another routine night, but fate ruled otherwise for her.

A dapper, nattily-dressed man rose from one of the tables and approached her desk.

"Just a second, please," requested Mary. "One hundred and eighty-five, ninety, ninety-three......" She finished counting and looked up expecting to see the customer's check.

Her eyes widened in horror. Instead of a check he was holding an automatic pointing directly at her.

"Easy now, girlie!" he cautioned softly. "Hand over that dough. Hand it over quietly, or I'll blow the daylight into you."

His free hand darted forward suddenly and snatched the bills from her hand. Mary screamed.

"Stand back!" he shouted, brandishing his weapon.

Mary saw that the dark-haired young man was closest to the door. But he had his hands over his head like the other patrons.

Just as he neared the door however, something happened. Mary's dark haired admirer suddenly swung his foot, kicking a chair in the path of the robber. The gunman half-stumbled and then reached for the door, but too late.

The dark-haired young man plunged forward in a flying tackle and rolled over the floor with the bandit, whose gun was knocked from his hand. Waiters rushed in and completed the capture.

"It was wonderful the way you did that!" Mary exclaimed to her admirer, now no longer unknown, after police took the prisoner away.

"Oh, I don't deserve any special credit," he replied. "I played football three years in college and with all that experience both the chair kick and the tackle were a cinch."

"Anyway, I'm awfully grateful to you," said Mary. "I'd have hated for him to get away with that money he snatched from me."

"If you're really grateful," he said, "why don't you go dancing with me after you're through here tonight. I've been wanting to ask you for nearly a week, but I didn't care."

Mary smiled and nodded acceptance.

MAN MOST SUSCEPTIBLE AT 33, SAYS THE MARRY-GO-ROUND

Helen Rowland Gives Advice to Girl Who Seriously Intends Marriage

By HELEN ROWLAND

NO MAN would probably admit that there is a definite "marrying age" for men. Anywhere from 20 to 90, he feels that he is eligible—and dangerous.

* * *

But if a girl has really serious matrimonial intentions and is looking for the quickest returns for the least effort, I commend to her a man between 30 and 35. THAT is the Susceptible Age of Man! Thirty-three, to be specific, is the favorite marrying age—when most men face the Lohengrin music.

* * *

Up to 30, the average unattached man spends most of his evenings gathering primroses while he may and trying to prove that variety is the spice of love. He is wary of matrimony and strong on sales resistance. He is having a GOOD TIME!

* * *

After 35, if by luck or accident he is still single, his impressability has begun to jell and his enthusiasm to cool, and he will soon be practically immune. He has gotten his second wind.

* * *

But in between he is a leaf in the wind! A helpless toy of Fate—and of any attractive woman who happens to set her heart upon him! Poor butterfly!

* * *

It is the age at which almost any man is most attractive and most eligible. When he has "arrived," or is well started in life, and can stop and THINK. It is the hazardous point, at which he begins to lose his taste for dancing and casual petting and whoopee. And to wonder if the synthetic cocktails and synthetic love affairs are worth the headache and the bad taste they leave.

ANYWHERE FROM 20 TO 90
MARRYING AGE
TAP

* * *

It is the restive hour, in which he begins to feel weary of hotel cooking and the sketchy housekeeping of a bachelor apartment; and to long for regular meals, a well-ordered life and a well-ordered "place" where he can set up his household gods with a feeling of permanency.

* * *

It is the tempting moment, when he begins to sit off in a corner at his club and feel sorry for himself. When he begins to sighs for quiet, cozy evenings in his OWN library, and to dream of soft-shaded reading lamps, hot waffles for breakfast—and somebody to look after his things, and count his laundry, listen to his confidences and smooth his head sympathetically after he has had a hard day at the office.

* * *

It is the fatal moment when he begins to be fed up with jazz and PLAY, and bored with the stupid monotony of one girl after another, one silly affair after another, and one kiss after another. When he begins to think about himself, worry about himself and to wonder why he feels "lonely" in a crowd and if there isn't something MORE to life. Something that he's MISSING!

ANY NEW GIRL WILL DO
"MARRY ME"
5-18

* * *

And just at this susceptible moment he always meets a new girl—ANY new girl will do—and it's all over but choosing the favors for the ushers!

* * *

Oh, yes, the Marrying Age for a woman is anywhere between 16 and 60, according to whether the bait is beauty, brains or money. But the Marrying Age for the average man is those tender, susceptible, attractive early thirties!

Life Not Just a Bowl of Cherries

By ELSIE ROBINSON

"I'M NOT VERY POPULAR," he writes, unhappily. "I can't just laugh and wisecrack, no matter what happens. People tell me I take things too hard. They say 'life is just a bowl of cherries,' so why be serious? Do you think they are right?"

Elsie Robinson

No, I don't. But they're in the majority, son. We moderns are that way. We tap-dance through life wisecrack in the face of destiny. And we think that proves we're clever.

But it doesn't.

IT MERELY PROVES WE'RE FOOLS AND COWARDS.

We aren't outsmarting life with our cynicism and our wisecracks. We're merely running away from life, and two-timing ourselves by doing so.

LIFE ISN'T JUST A BOWL OF CHERRIES.

Life is a noble adventure for brave souls.

Like every adventure it is filled with danger and pain, but it holds, also mystery and wonder and beauty beyond words for those who have the courage to seek.

Many do not seek. They desire only to be comfortable and amused. Life for such is literally a bowl of cherries—AND THEY ARE THE WORMS.

But for the real men and women nothing is "unimportant"; every experience is worth while.

The tired mother drudging through her round of household chores, denying her own youth that her children may grow into a happier maturity, is actually having "a better time" than the flippant flapper with her cynical egoism who is still just a sweet young thing at forty.

That mother has dared to live. She has dared to give life and has lost her life that others may live.

Joan walking to the stake; Socrates drinking his hemlock; Christ dying on the cross, and the untold millions who dared to risk the fullness of life, dared to laugh at the futility of death—they, alone were the wise men.

"Yes, it sounds wonderful to read about them, but you get an awful razz if you try to live that [illegible] some youngster [illegible] "You can't possibly be popular if you take things seriously."

No, you can't be popular and probably will get the razz, just as they did.

But there are greater things than [illegible] by dear—more rare and [illegible]orable things. Human companionship is a good thing child. BUT LIFE IS A GREATER THING IF YOU HAVE THE COURAGE TO FACE IT AND TAKE IT!

New Ways of Using Bacon, and How It Should Be Cooked Properly

By MARTHA LEE

From Martha Lee's Wednesday Morning Broadcast Over Station WAAB.

HELLO, FOLKSES! Will you please pin the curls up off your ears and lend them to me for just a few minutes while I deliver my annual, semi-annual and oftener lecture on the proper cooking of bacon and some new ways of using it?

I'll admit that bacon cooking is a hobby of mine—and also that only in the past few years I've learned to cook it correctly. Time was when I served just the plain, soft, unattractive looking bacon, or the charred-to-a-cinder kind that I find in so many homes and restaurants. It was a fishing guide guard, with little claim to culinary skill, who first showed [illegible] tion. He put the delicately thin slices into a cold pan and cooked them slowly, pouring off the excess fat from time to time. It took five times longer than most of us cook our bacon before the slices had given up most of the fat and were ready to crisp beautifully on soft paper.

Of course, I'll admit that there is bacon and bacon—and we must have fresh quality bacon with just the right proportion of lean and fat, and correctly cured. Oh yes, I'll admit it—I'm thinking of the kind made from New England fresh dressed piggies. And I ask you where can you improve upon it?

At this time of year I think frankfurters wrapped in bacon and baked until crisp, served with diced new potatoes, cooked and creamed until they have thickened in their own sauce, is a combination that moves right up to the head of the class.

With this Bacon and Cheese Omelet as a close second:

BACON AND CHEESE OMELET

- ⅓ cup finely cut bacon
- 6 eggs
- ½ tsp. salt
- 1 cup grated cheese
- ⅓ cup milk
- ⅛ tsp. paprika.
- Pepper to season
- 6 slices bacon broiled

Beat eggs slightly and mix with milk, salt, paprika and pepper. Cook the diced bacon in a hot frying pan until brown. Pour in the egg mixture and cook slowly until firm. Spread the cheese over the omelet, and place in a hot oven for two minutes; fold, turn out on a hot platter and garnish with broiled bacon. Serve at once garnished with crisp watercress or radishes. Serves six.

MEAT CAKES WITH BACON

Bind a thinly cut strip of bacon around each meat cake, [illegible] fasten with small wooden skewers. Bake in a hot oven about 15 minutes, basting twice with the bacon [illegible]

DAY-DREAMING RELIEF FROM NIGHTMARES

By B. C. FORBES

INSTEAD OF WALLOWING in pessimism, let's for this one day give rein to imagination and indulge in optimistic "supposing."

Suppose

Congress promptly got down to business.

Passed reasonably sensible tax legislation.

Effected very substantial economies.

Adopted a rational budget.

Impressed by public insistence, promptly adjourned thereafter.

Buy Up at Low Prices

Suppose:

Many corporation executives, reaching the conclusion that prices were untenably low, began placing contracts for raw materials.

Manufacturers of basic farm commodities started stocking up.

Make Idle Money Work

Suppose

The nation's leading bankers, finding their institutions glutted with idle money, resolved to put it to work.

Instead of tumbling over themselves to get treasury bills yielding less than [illegible] of 1 per cent a year, they entered the bond market and absorbed gilt edged issues.

When quotations for the higest grades advanced sufficiently to make them less attractive, the buying veered to issues of a somewhat lower investment rating.

Sound borrowers were encouraged by bankers to employ some of the hundreds of billions of potential credit now being made available by the Federal Reserve.

Lending to responsible builders were resumed, on easy terms.

Bank re-openings consistently exceeded bank closings, both in number and deposits.

Hoarding entirely ceased and hidden funds reappeared in impressive amounts.

Stocks Return to Favor

Suppose

Stocks began regaining some degree of favor.

Investment trusts became buyers.

Men of means—financiers, capitalists, corporation directors, executives—started reaccumulating normal lines of stocks, especially of corporations with which they are identified.

The consequent rise had nationwide effect and stimulated purchasing by small investors.

Bears, who still account for a considerable percentage of transactions, figured that their harvest days had ended, causing them to transfer their activities to the constructive side.

Reciprocity on Tariffs

Suppose.

European countries, abandoning hope of being able to wring further debt reductions from America, proceeded to effect very drastic retrenchment in their expenditures on armaments.

Suicidal tariff warfare, now hurting every industrial nation, gave place to beneficial tariff reciprocity.

International co-operation on oil, now actively under consideration, bore tangible fruit.

International co-operation of copper and sugar brought more live-and-let-live prices.

International co-operation on shipping did something practicable to put that industry on its feet.

Accord to End Price Cutting

Suppose:

Ruinous price-cutting at home was talked over by the leaders in each line of business now suffering acutely.

A legal way was found to modify the worst evils now prevalent.

Prospects of stability stimulated the replenishing of inventories today unprecedentedly depleted.

The re-engaging of many idle workers was thus made possible and profitable.

Yes, I well know this will be impatiently dubbed a day-dream, a pipe-dream, childish twaddle, as silly as was the preaching of caution in 1929.

Alarmists are daily conjuring up so many nightmares that perhaps one unharrowing day-dream can do no harm.

Even day-dreams do sometimes eventually come true.

NEW ENGLAND FOUND BEST SITUATED

By FRANK H. MELOON

Whenever one talks with those who have recently completed tours into other sections of the country, the outstanding fact brought out by the conversation is apt to be that New England is the section best situated today as regards general conditions. The underlying fact is that eyes are on this section to show leadership in the inevitable recovery. It can safely be said we possess [illegible] leadership.

Hears:

That the chance of a fundamental turn for the better is driving the most rabid bears to the sidelines. The belief that Washington will yet furnish real leadership is the prime factor, while the technical position of the market itself is considered good. Added to this is the strength of principal commodities and the payment of the regular Telephone dividend as predicted here on Monday.

Technical Position

Since consideration of what might come out of Washington is largely conjecture, traders must [illegible] has been more than drastic and recent declines exceed the average falls of the last two years.

The seven major collapses of this bear market show an average loss of 50 per cent as figured on the Dow-Jones industrial index. The first and fifth were the sharpest and ran about 48 per cent. The rails duplicated this until the seventh, when over a 50 per cent loss is shown. Based on the closing Saturday, the industrials had lost [illegible] per cent [illegible]

Boardroom Briefs

There is no reason to assume the industrials are to equal the 50 per cent loss . . . Even if they should the actual dollar drop would only be about $3 . . . If it were not for the time element forthright bullishness would be in order . . . Usually [illegible] 88 days [illegible] line.

But [illegible] expected to snap out of it before then . . . At the same time, losses have been so severe that the full time may not elapse before a rally sets in . . . This is the way a prominent and very successful trader sizes up the situation . . . He is backing his judgment by buying stocks . . . If the average [illegible]

Odds and Ends

Stocks which well informed interests favor are du Pont, Westinghouse and Carbide . . . Another stock which seems well taken on setbacks is Lambert . . . Today's News of Live Stocks in Wall Street

IT IS noticeable that Texas Corporation stock moves with Standard of New Jersey, Royal Dutch and Socony-Vacuum shares. This obviously reflects the fluctuating sentiment with respect to the prospects for favorable or unfavorable outcome of the present international oil conference.

Texas Corp's Stake In Oil Conference

Texas is one of the most important factors in foreign oil markets, operating through about 30 subsidiaries. Its representatives presumably are negotiating with the other oil interests in the present attempt to arrange a world agreement both on production and, probably later, on allotment of markets.

International Shoe Finally Yields

Those who have been holding International Shoe common against all pressure finally lowered the peg to 35.

Unbiased observers have right along insisted that attempts to peg stocks were unhealthy for all concerned including the general market. But the International Shoe supporters apparently were able to sustain their purchase by the premiums which were obtained from shorts at he same time lightening their loads whenever bears became frightened and forced up the price.

However, there is a limit to all purchasing power and the market will not feel easier until evidence is available that all artificial support has been removed from the stock.

Nash Reflecting Better Resistance

Better grade of support is said to exist for Nash Motors based largely on the company's exceptional financial position. Incidentally the stock is selling on a par with General Motors. Important feature of the Nash position is the high ratio of current assets to present market price of the stock. Greatest degree of liquidity lies in cash account and government security holdings. Although present Nash earnings are anything but satisfactory and suggest a lower dividend, automobile trade reports indicate the company's new models are meeting a gratifying reception.

Western Union Loses Old Rating

Realization that Western Union common has definitely lost its former investment appeal may account for its frequent spells of weakness of late. The high rating carried by the stock for many years past was based largely on the company's staple earning power and the consistency of growth in its industry.

New Haven Pref. Payment in Doubt

Anticipated omission of dividends on New Haven preferred finds reflection in the constant decline in price of the issue. Payments are cumulative at the rate of $7 annually. Directors meet shortly to discuss the question. First quarter statement of the road showed a deficit after deducting dividend requirements for the senior stock. Subsequent continued decline in the system's car loadings and impaired current position due to increasing bank loans and drain on surplus have intensified the poor outlook for the current quarter.

General Theatres Action Given Study

The annual report of General Theatres Equipment Corp showed a net loss of $881,028, exclusive of an estimated loss of $1,098,280 "due to trading in class A stock of Fox Film Corp. and the failure of a brokerage house." This loss was noted in the preliminary statement of the corporation's activities for the year. The security trading and brokerage failure item was charged to operating surplus account.

—SPECTATOR—

Says:

Wall Street seems to have gone through one of its lightning-like changes from darkness to sunshine. Sentiment is better now that stocks have improved for a couple of days. Enthusiasm was chilled somewhat by announcement that Congress was unlikely to adjourn next month, but the feeling that constructive news will come from Washington still persists. Until this develops, however, there is little disposition to play around the market.

Three Rumors

Rumors include a coming bulge in the bond market, a rise in wheat enough to knock your eye out and something sensationally bullish from Washington.

Just what there is to the persistent talk of a bond pool is impossible to determine . . . Banks have been nibbling around bonds in the last week or so. It would seem that all bonds need anyway is a balanced budget, after which they would take care of themselves . . .

Wheat Outlook

As to wheat, there has been important switching from the bear to the bull side in the last few days. Opinion is still mixed, however, whether the grain can improve more than a few cents a bushel at this time . . . The Farm Board is still around with plenty to sell.

Interests that were the big sellers of Allied Chemical 100 points up are reported to feel more friendly to the stock.

There has been quiet accumulation in the leading rubber stocks.

GRAINS STAGE FRESH RALLY

Chicago, May 18 (AP)—Influenced by setbacks in Liverpool quotations, wheat prices here sagged early today but buying on resting orders caused rallies. There was no aggressive pressure to sell.

Opening at a shade to ⅛ decline, Chicago wheat later rose all around to above yesterday's finish. Corn started at ⅛-¼ off to a shade advance, and subsequently scored general gains.

$42,000,000 IN DIVIDENDS PAID BY TELEPHONE

American Telephone & Telegraph Co. today declared the regular quarterly dividend of $2.25 on the capital stock, as definitely predicted exclusively in the State St. column of the Boston Evening American Monday, while others were forecasting a reduction.

Today's dividend, payable July 15 to stock of record June 20, means distribution of about $42,000,000 to the stockholders, numbering more than 650,000.

Wall Street opinion had been divided as to whether Telephone would pay at its regular $9 rate, but it had been recently revealed that current operations of the company are running approximately the level of the first quarter when the corporation earned $2.07 a share.

Loss of telephones was rather substantial in that period, which usually sees the leanest business, but it is reported this decrease has slackened.

The company' cash and short-term investments at the end of 1931 totaed $289,000,000, so that financial quarters see American Telephone well supplied with funds to meet its needs during 1932 without assistance from new financing.

GEN. ELECTRIC HOLDING OWN

General Electric appears to be holding its own. It now appears that billings for the second quarter will be approximately equal to the $37,876,399 sales in the first quarter. On this volume the quarter's profit would be greater than the $5,172,423, or 18 cents a share earned on the 28,845,927 common shares in the first three months.

Since the quarter's dividend of 25 cents a share would require earnings of $7,214,481, an increase of approximately $2,000,000, it appears likely that the quarters' earnings will be somewhat less than dividend needs.

Second-quarter profits of General Electric Co. will reflect an improved adjustment of expenses to reduced business.

Cotton Steady in New York Market

New York, May 18—Cotton futures maintained a steady tone today, moving within a narrow range practically unchanged from the previous close. Quotations were unchanged to up 3 points with May unchanged at 5.52; July up 3 at 5.64, October up 3 at 5.89, December up 2 at 6.02, and March 33 up 2 at 6.25.

PRICES MIXED IN WALL ST. DEALINGS

New York, May 18—Prices were mixed in trading today on the New York Stock Exchange, with spotty rallying fololowing American Telephone's declaration of its regular dividend, involving the payment of about $42,000,000.

American Teephone, however, was churned around fractionally to a new low after the declaration had been made public.

FIRST NATIONAL UP

First National Stores soled up more than a point, following publication of announcement it would shortly issue the best report in its history.

Rails were mixed, with Union Pacific up around a point and Norfolk & Western off over a point.

Owens-Libbey and National Cash Register had point gains. Filene's preferred jumped 5 points and Crown Cork & Seal and Hershey lifted a couple of points at the same time.

The United States government list staged a moderate rally in today's bond market, but corporate loans followed an irregular trend in quiet trading.

Announcement of the Federal Reserve Board that the system would continue its easy money policy by further purchases of government obligations caused a raising of prices in both Liberties and Treasuries.

A better tone was indicated in the railroad department at one time, but carrier liens eased later. While the utilities and industrials moved in a narrow range, a few of the higher grade issues firmed.

STEEL OPERATIONS UP

Iron Age provided a ray of cheer by announcing that steel operations had risen one point to 25 per cent of capacity on the strength of automobile orders. However, marked irregularity exists as among the various steel-making districts.

The outstanding overnight news was official word that the reserve banks were to continue government security purchases on a scale to be determined from time to time as conditions justify.

Whether this meant buying was to be diminished gradually, perhaps after the total accumulation had reached $600,000,000 or somewhat more, was not disclosed, although the probability of a smaller program was pointed out in some quarters here.

Reserve system's credit expansion program has met obstacles in legislative delays and uncertainties at Washington, but bankers feel its effects will become more apparent when these have been cleared away.

A turn in commercial borrowing is likely to come slowly, bankers say, and will probably be preceded by substantial increases in banks' bond investments. There has already been some progress in the latter direction.

MARKET VIEWS OF BROKERS

Theodore Prince & Co.—We can only advise awaiting an up move on volume with absorption of stock at higher prices before making and commitments.

Shields & Co.—The market is very thin on both sides so that any important news could cause a good swing, but for the time being there is so great fear of buying that only a surprising change of sentiment in Congress would be likely to bring much of a rally. Flurries will interrupt the downward trend but for the moment there appears no reason to change from a very conservative trading policy.

Josephthal & Co.—In the absence of any decided improvement in the news there seems to be little basis for expecting a continuation of the rally.

Russell Miller & Co.—The market had an undertone of strength with an apparent desire to do better once a favorable new stimulus of real importance comes out in the open.

Edward B. Smith & Co.—Pressure of liquidation seems temporarily at least to have been arrested.

Brillo Mfg. Net 15 Cts a Share

Brillo Manufacturing Co. for the quarter ended March 31 last, reports a net profit of $37,478 after depreciation, Federal taxes, etc., equal after dividend requirements on 27,880 shares of class A stock to 15 cents a share on 160,000 shares of common, as against $76,405, or 39 cents a common share in the first quarter of 1931.

Directors declared the regular quarterly dividends of 15 cents on the common and 50 cents on the class A, both payable July 1 to stock of record June 15.

$1,576,200 U. S. Loan Granted to Wabash

Washington, May 18 (AP)—The Interstate Commerce Commission today approved an additional loan of $1,576,200 by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to the Wabash Railway Company.

It previously had been granted a loan of $7,173,800, and had applied for a total of $18,500,000.

The Wabash is in the hands of receivers.

Makes New Products for Medical Trade

New York, May 18—McKesson & Robbins, Inc., as a result of research work carried on in its own laboratories and through agreements entered into with other laboratories, is making considerable progress in the distribution of ethical products for the medical profession. This progress is already showing up considerably in the sales end of the business.

The new products already introduced to the medical profession are McKesson's Copper and Iron Compound, for the treatment of anemia; Gadusan for the treatment of various forms of tuberculosis and McKesson's Salvacid, which is a revolutionary treatment of ulcers.

SOLD ON PRESCRIPTION ONLY

The Copper and Iron Compound, which is a formula developed in the company's laboratories, is meeting with unusual success, states F. Donald Coster, president. Since this product was first introduced in the autumn of 1931, a total of 139,680 units of eight ounces each have been distributed.

As the use of this product is confined to physicians' prescriptions, it furnishes evidence of the increased activity of the company in the strictly ethical end of the medical field.

The outstanding feature of this compound lies in the fact that for the first time there has been chemically reproduced copper and iron salts similar to those found to exist in the human liver, thus making blood much faster than any other known product, as has been proven by both clinical and laboratory tests.

WORK OF BRAZILIAN DOCTOR

In the case of Gadusan, McKesson & Robbins, Inc., has entered into a contract with the Instituto Terapeutico Orlando Rangel, of Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, under which the former holds exclusive rights for the distribution of this product in the United States and Canada. Gadusan is a collodial copper morrhante produced by Dr. Paulo Seabra of Brazil.

It is a new treatment for pulmonary tuberculosis through intracavitary injections and has been the subject of much favorable comment on the part of physicians who have already used the product prior to and since its general introduction to the medical profession.

As in the case of the other two products Salvacid is also a new product in this country, as it is just being introduced. This product is based upon the formula of a Hungarian chemist, and has met with a big success in Europe. Clinical work has been done in many of the world-renowned European hospitals.

AUTO INDUSTRY BUYING IS UP

New York, May 18 (AP)—Responding to increased steel buying by the automobile industry, ingot production for the country has risen a point to 25 per cent of capacity, Iron Age said today. In the two preceding weeks production was at the rate of 24 per cent.

Steel making activities in the various districts show marked contrasts, the review stated. In the Pittsburgh district the rate has declined from 20 per cent to 18 per cent, the lowest in many years, while Cleveland plants are operating at 38 per cent against 26 per cent last week. The Detroit district, including the Ford steel plant, has by far the best production, 81 per cent, according to the review.

The determination of steel producers to adhere to a level of prices that will give them the full benefit of savings accruing from wage reductions, is one of the strongest factors in the steel situation, it is asserted.

Creole Petroleum Net Loss $4,510,465

Creole Petroleum Corp. and affiliated companies for the year ended Dec. 31 last report a net loss of $4,510,465 after taxes, depreciation, depletion, amortization, cancelled and surrendered concessions, minority interest and loss of $1,787,500 on investment in stock of Merida Oil Corp.

It was stated the dividend was reduced so that the difference might be used to reduce outstanding obligations of the corporation.

Reserve Upbuilding Proceeding Well

New York, May 17 (AP)—The time-mellowed retort that "Rome wasn't built in a day" is now employed as an answer to skeptics by bankers and others who are championing the new Federal Reserve program to pump life into business by using a pulmotor on credit.

Federal Reserve's program calls for loosening up bank credit through the expedient of buying up Government bonds at a $100,000,000-a-week clip, thus forcing idle bank money into other channels for investment.

"The new campaign is coming along well," said one banker who contends that the only way to break up the vicious spiral of deflation is to make money and credit dirt cheap. "Time, and time alone, is all that is required to bring full success to the program. You have to remember that this forest fire on credit destruction and price deflation has been going on for 30 months. The Reserve's campaign has been under way only six weeks."

Bank economists and other students, who have dug deep into the nation's records, report that precedent points definitely to success. Going back as far as 1790, evidence has been brought forward, these authorities state, to show that in periods such as the present a groundwork is laid, once credit deflation is ended, to bring about later prosperity.

Fast Pennsy Freight Flyer to Boston Successful

Philadelphia, May 18—Inaugurated as an experimental service giving overnight delivery for the first time in history between Baltimore, Philadelphia and Boston, The Speed Witch, world's fastest regular freight flyer, has just completed a successful year's operation.

No longer an experiment, The Speed Witch is now the leader of the Pennsylvania Railroad's freight limiteds and the forerunner of the fast fleet of freight flyers now being developed by that railroad.

The Speed Witch is said to be the fastest long distance freight train in the world. On the trip to Boston the average speed for the rail movement from Baltimore is 33.7 miles per hour. On the south-bound trip she flies at an average of 36.6 miles per hour. The actual rail mileage is 412 miles.

The Speed Witch reaches her highest speed between Greenville yards, near Jersey City, and Baltimore on its southward journey when she covers a distance of 178 miles in four hours and 45 minutes. She makes two stops of 15 minutes each at Frankford Junction, Philadelphia, and Edgemoor yards, just outside of Wilmington, making the actual running time at the rate of 41.9 miles per hour. On the northward trip, the Speed Witch travels at the rate of 35.6 miles per hour, allowing for stops of 15 minutes each at Edgemoor yard and Frankford Junction to pick up additional cars.

The Speed Witch gives a fast and regular service to Boston from Baltimore, Wilmington, Chester, Philadelphia, Camden, Trenton and Newark. It leaves Baltimore at 12:30 p. m. and arrives in Boston at 4:15 a. m. the next day. Returning, it leaves Boston at 4:20 p. m., arriving in Baltimore the next day at 7:15 a. m.

Pan American Calls $2,821,000 Bonds

Pan American Petroleum & Transport Co., controlled by Standard Oil Co. (Indiana) is calling for redemption July 1, at 101¼ and accrued interest its $2,821,000 10-year convertible 6 per cent sinking fund bonds, due Nov. 1, 1934. They may be converted into class B common at any time up to and including the thirtieth day prior to redemption date.

Bond Deposit Date Extended

Directors of St. Louis Southwestern voted to extend the time under which holders of 4 per cent consolidated mortgage bonds may deposit their bonds to May 25 from May 1. President Upthegrove said the Reconstruction Finance Corp. has agreed to increase the loan it originally agreed to make by approximately 6 per cent.

Japan Cotton Sales Above Production

Japan cabled Cotton Exchange Service that consumption by Japanese spinners is being maintained at a high rate and will doubtless continue at the high level for several months, and that sales of yarn and cloth the past two or three weeks have been above production, with mill margins sufficient to warrant continuance of high production of goods.

Poland to Redeem $700,000 in Bonds

$700,000 of the outstanding Republic of Poland 25-year sinking fund external 8 per cent gold bonds, dated Jan. 1, 1925, will be redeemed at 105 per cent and accrued interest on July 1, 1932, under the sinking fund agreement.

Fidelity & Deposit to Reduce Capital

Baltimore, May 18—Directors of Fidelity & Deposit Co. propose reduction of capital stock from par value of $50 a share to $20. Change will lower capitalization from $6,000,000 to $2,400,000 and difference will be transferred to surplus.

$395,000,000 in Treasury Tenders

Tenders for $75,000,000 91-day Treasury bills, dated May 18, and maturing August 17, were $395,000,000. Bids for $75,000,000 were accepted at average price of 99.893, equivalent to 0.43 per cent interest rate on bank discount basis.

BOSTON STOCKS MOSTLY UP

Leading shares were mostly higher in today's dealings on the Boston Stock Exchange with changes ranging from fractions to 2 points or more. Maine Central, an inactive issue, slumped 10 points to a new low for the year.

Atchison was fractionally higher while Pennsylvania eased a minor fraction. New Haven was slightly higher in forenoon trading, but hovered around its previous closing level for the greater part of the session. Boston & Albany dropped a point to a new 1932 low.

Edison Electric advanced 2 points. American Telephone lowered a minor fraction and New England Telephone was unchanged for the greater part of the day.

First National Stores was strong, showing a gain of well over a point. Gillette, Shawmut Association and United Shoe were at fractionally higher levels. Bigelow Sanford added a minor fraction.

EUROPE'S INDICTMENT OF UNITED STATES EXCESSIVE

By GILBERT SELDES

GILBERT SELDES

"I HOPE," SAID JOHN, whose restaurant is also a speakeasy, "that when they catch the murderers they will have something to do with the racket—rum-runners or bootleggers or something. Then people will know what it means." I confess that I found this comment on the Lindbergh case more penetrating and intelligent than most of the editorials cabled back from Europe. London Star said: "It is part of the price America has to pay for her cheap foreign labor, her worship of enterprise, and the praise she has too often given to get-rich-quick ideas" and the general tone of European comment is that the fibre of American character has been worn out, with the odd corollary that capture and execution of the murderers would prove that there was still hope for us.

Our Real Fault

The truth is that we have condoned all the minor crimes (including mass murder between gangsters and the murder of innocent people by officers of the law) which prepared this foul crime; but the shock to the country's nervous system from the day the baby was stolen to the moment murder was discovered, shows that under the leadership of moralists and politicians we have blundered into a dark swamp. We thought that gangsters might kill each other off without affecting the death rate and that the "protection" we paid for really could protect. There was something pitiful in our shock when we discovered a few weeks ago that criminals had no sense of honor and would accept ransoms without returning their victim, and some of us were shocked again to discover that criminals commit murder.

No Common Respect

Crime and kidnaping particularly existed before prohibition, and the restoration of liquor will not automatically make saints of the underworld.

All prohibition has done has been undermining the common respect for law and enormously exaggerating the criminal's feeling of safety; it has even given the criminal a code of morals upon which Al Capone, for instance, falls back with a smugness which ought to make the Anti-Saloon wince. It is the one law which criminals are organized to defeat, confident that public opinion will applaud their efforts. That other bands should take their cue from this organization, and conspire to break other laws, is inevitable.

Minds and Morals

Because the country is heartsick, it need not grow flabby in its mind. The satisfaction of our sense of justice requires the capture and execution of the murderers; but prompt and successful as our police may be, they will not change the record of the crime nor "redeem the soul of the nation."

The kidnaping and murder of the Lindbergh baby is an assassination, accomplished for money. Yet it is not the outcome of America's money-madness. It is directly the outcome of the corrupt morality which imposed the Eighteenth Amendment on the country; and what it calls for is a revaluation of morals. We have to use our intelligence to discover the exact degree of nobility in the inspiration and the execution of the amendment; merely going into sackcloth and ashes will not get us very far.

I go back to John the keeper of the speakeasy, because it impressed me that the revolt against the domination of the racketeers should be so marked among the very people who live on illicit liquor. John is breaking the law and is paying a large sum of money to be allowed to break the law; yet I can see none of the stigmata of criminality in him. Nor in Mike, another proprietor of a speakeasy who, as I noted a few weeks ago, told me that in the past few months he has been working "for downtown." That is to say, he has made no profit, because protection comes so high and receipts are diminishing.

Since the habit of smashing bars and furniture has been countenanced by law, the grafters of protection have speakeasymen in a vise; their slightest threat can not only padlock a leased place, but smash three thousand dollars' worth of equipment. So their rake-off is higher. John and Mike both were headwaiters before prohibition and Mike was running a proper restaurant in 1919; he had to serve liquor or go under.

I am, of course, in the pay of the Wets, and to earn the half million a year they pay me, I must propagandize for them. Our minister to Sweden, Mr. Morehead, must be a fellow slave of mine. From his report on the workings of the Bratt system in Sweden, I gather the following figures: Consumption of spirits—off 30 per cent; convictions for drunkenness—off 52 per cent; arrests for same—off 76 per cent; deaths due to chronic alcoholism—off 89 per cent; cases of alcoholic insanity—off 51 per cent; crimes for violence—off 44 per cent.

A Middle Way

Now note that I do not say whether the previous record was under a wet or dry regime. It doesn't matter. If Sweden was bone dry the decreases are significant; if it was wet, even more so. Or vice versa. (Actually the Bratt system replaced the Goteborg system which abolished the saloon, but allowed the sale of liquor at certain hours.) The idea upon which our drys need to concentrate is that regulation is a possibility and that there is a middle ground between drunkenness and the Lindbergh crime.

Gossip About People You Know

WARD BLOSSOMS

Senator Michael J. Ward, of Boston, Mayor Curley's spokesmen in the upper branch of the Legislature, has blossomed out in a pair of black suede shoes. "Mike" says they are much more comfortable than leather.

ADAMS TO ARGUE

Charles Francis Adams, secretary of the navy, is expected to appear before the tax appeal board within a week or so to argue on a case in which he is interested as a trustee.

SPLIT TIME

The two chaplains of the Legislature have tried out a little innovation, with great success. The House Chaplain Abbot Peterson offered prayers in the Senate and Senate Chaplain Arthur M. Ellis gave the prayers in the House.

DUTCH SUPPER

Members of William F. Sinclair Post, city employes branch of the American Legion, are to have a Dutch Supper in Schwaben Hall, Heath st., Roxbury, on June 1. "Chris" King, of the Highland st. yard of the city sanitary service, heads the committee of arrangements.

URGE TO RUN

Friends are urging Gabriel Piemonte of North End, who was a strong candidate in the campaign for Legislature there two years ago, to seek election to that office again next fall. Piemonte is president of the Foster Associates.

What the Hearst Papers Advocate No. 7 Federal sales tax and excise taxes to replace the income tax, which has degenerated into a racket.

'He Serves His Party Best Who Serves His Country Best'

Senator Smoot of Utah is sadly mistaken if he thinks that the passage of any tax bill quickly will do more to aid national recovery than the passage of a sound tax bill deliberately.

Other Senators and Representatives in Congress are no less mistaken if they think they can dodge responsibility for delaying national recovery by jamming through Congress a vicious tax bill merely because they wish to participate in the national conventions of their respective parties.

Where does Congress get the idea that adjournment before the two-ring political show that opens at Chicago next month is necessary to national recovery?

Where does Congress get the idea that the people are demanding helter-skelter enactment of its legislative program in order that the log-rollers and wire-pullers of the Senate and House may attend the Democratic and Republican national conventions?

Obviously Congress gets this idea out of thin air. Actually there is no such popular demand, north, east, south or west.

The plain people are not interested in the political fate of more than a handful of the members of the present Senate and House of Representatives.

What the plain people are interested in, what they demand, is that Congress shall remain on the job until it has balanced the budget by some such fair and wise tax bill as the House Committee on Ways and Means, under the chairmanship of Congressman Crisp of Georgia, reported to the House with the support of the DEMOCRATIC AND REPUBLICAN LEADERSHIP of that body.

What the plain people demand is that Congress shall balance the budget by a tax bill that will improve business conditions and not make them vastly worse than they are at present.

What the plain people demand is that Congress shall do its legislative best to rehabilitate agriculture, commerce and labor, revive business, reduce unemployment and restore confidence.

And the plain people north, east, south and west are not in the least interested in the efforts of the political mountebanks of either House of Congress to rehabilitate the discredited politicians of either party.

The fate of these discredited politicians, whether they disgrace the Democratic or Republican label, is going to be attended to at the polls next November by the voters of both parties who are becoming disgusted, sickened and appalled by the colossal display of ignorance, wilfulness and selfishness on the part of both the Senate and the House.

The American people have seen an indefensible tax bill as it was passed by the insurgents of the House made infinitely worse by a Senate committee whose least concern appears to be the public welfare.

Panic seems to have succeeded hysteria under the Capitol dome as the American people see Congress in frantic haste rushing through to ill-considered finality an indefensible tax bill which, instead of relieving the present depression, is sure to make it worse.

Congress should disabuse its mind at once of any idea that Senators and Representatives can justify before the people a reckless sacrifice of the public interest to the selfish political ends of candidates for re-election.

The imperative duty of the Congress in this emergency is to stick to the job at Washington until sanity has come out of madness—if it takes all summer.

If Congress can finish its work WITH CREDIT TO ITS MEMBERSHIP AND BENEFIT TO THE NATION before the Chicago conventions that will mean just so much hope of something intelligent and helpful to the household of the nation coming out of those conventions.

America Stands Convicted

It Has No Plea to Offer in Defense

America stands convicted of the Lindbergh baby's murder. No plea but GUILTY can be made.

For whoever the actual slayer was—a maniac, a gangster, a seasoned criminal working alone or a novice who lost his nerve—the responsibility for this death rests squarely on the shoulders of the people of the United States.

"God's country" has reaped the harvest of its own sowing.

No citizen can honestly deny that, through his own indifference to the forces that are undermining our national existence, he shares the blame.

It is not pleasant for a nation to be pointed at with scorn as "uncivilized," yet the comments abroad on the Lindbergh tragedy should be read and pondered by every American, for they are deserved.

The London Evening News says, for example:

> "It is for the people of the United States to decide whether, in the name of other still unmurdered children, it will call a halt to a state of things that looks like making the gangster and the thug the final arbiters of every American's destiny."

And the Osservatore Romano, through which the Pope often speaks, declares:

> "It is to be hoped that this will induce the United States to make every effort to eradicate the venomous plant of gangdom. If the tragedy results in the uprooting of all bandits, especially kidnapers, perhaps Colonel Lindbergh may find in this some comfort in his immense grief."

These utterances are typical of world opinion, as well as our own. They are bitter, but who can impeach their truth?

Only the stern resolve of every real American that such outrages must cease will restore this country to its rightful place among nations.

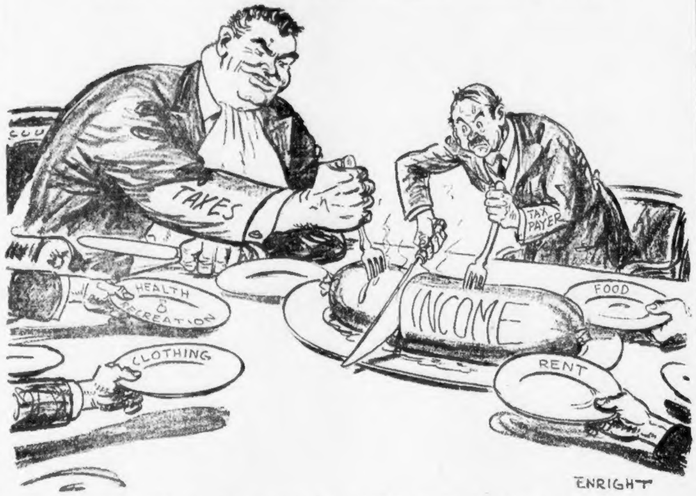
Only the fixed determination to stamp out crime and the conditions that breed crime will halt this onslaught of killers and gangsters and kidnapers on our families and our homes.

For years we have dodged, shuffled, sidestepped and evaded the issue.

Now we must face it.

It comes to us in the form of a child's broken, mangled body—and we know in our hearts that this is the work WE have wrought.

The Star Boarder Takes His Fifth



Waste and extravagance stalk through the land to spread disaster if not checked.

Expenditures for government—local, state and national—have increased from THREE THOUSAND MILLIONS of dollars in 1913 to FIFTEEN THOUSAND MILLIONS of dollars in 1931.

In amount this is an increase in the last nineteen years of four hundred per cent—an increase of more than four times the amount which citizens have to pay.

This means that one dollar out of every five earned today by the tax-ridden American people goes to 250,000 tax-gathering and tax-spending agencies.

Eighteen million American citizens now depend for their livelihood upon the tax rolls of government.

The cost of government is known to be excessive.

To continue the waste is INDEFENSIBLE.

It Needs a New Name!

ONCE UPON A TIME Congress was hailed as the "greatest deliberative tribunal in the world."

ONCE UPON A TIME, in the halls of Congress, STATESMEN vied with STATESMEN to advocate legislation for the best interest of the whole nation; national security, national comfort, national pride, national honor and national integrity transcended all other considerations.

But NOW, to any one courageous enough to attempt to follow the wild doings of the present membership, Congress in part has degenerated into a conglomeration of clowns, demagogues, jackass rabbits and monkeys.

F. B. Opper suggests naming it "THE MONKEY HOUSE!"

New York Day by Day -:- By O. O. McIntyre

Toss of a Coin

NEW YORK, May 18—Before Harold Ross attained editorship of The New Yorker he was somewhat of a soldier of fortune. In fact he was preparing to idle among the beach combers of Tahiti when a flip of the coin headed him toward the metropolis.

He had tasted life in the raw in northwest logging camps, with construction crews in Utah, edited small-town dailies, served with the A. E. F., and wound up as a reporter in San Francisco. With all his drawing-room aplomb, he was, in formative years, "the hard-boiled mug."

This impression was heightened by an unruly sprout of pompadour and stevedore swagger. His metier, despite his talent for spotting sophistication in literature, has been delving among hell-roaring excitement on the rougher edges of life.

This predilection is responsible for one of the oft told tales in the San Francisco news-shops in those relaxing periods after "30." Ross happened to be in a rather disreputable saloon one night when a perodical spasm of reform precipitated a raid.

There was a lineup of customers and a burly cop, coming upon Ross and recognizing him as a reporter, gave him a shove and snarled: "Get the hell out of here!" Ross felt aggrieved and demanded a ride in the wagon. Instead he got a well placed kick and the wagon clanged off.

Outraged, he stormed into the nearest police station, demanding the same treatment others received. The desk sergeant coddled him a while, tried to josh him out of his peeve and, failing, ordered a couple of roundsmen to give him the bum's rush to the sidewalk.

All night Ross brooded in neighboring bars, and at 9 a. m. appeared in court to join the victims of the raid. After the docket was cleared, he made another plea and again kerplunk on the slot of the car tracks. That gray, shaggy afternoon he tossed a coin—tails Tahiti, heads New York. Heads won.

* * *

Lou Holtz's quixotic experiment in vaudeville gave life to Broadway's theatrical "white elephant"—the Hollywood—for ten weeks anyway. The performances were hilariously informal and engagingly impromptu with Holtz wandering out into the audience to sit with a friend or interrupt with a suddenly made-up gag. But the strain was too great, and so Holtz is wandering around somewhere in Europe with Roxy.

* * *

That glowering old pile, remindful of Prison St. Lazare in its studied gloom, and known as Jefferson Market Jail on 6th avenue, has been supplanted by a two million dollar "House of Detention" in the most extravagant fling of penologists to date. An attendant aptly calls it: "The darb of hoose-gows."

* * *

And in a penny peep parlor on 6th avenue, a Peeping Tom reports a fugacious exhibit labeled: "Hotch Potchie Dotch or Pash in a Pent House."

* * *

I have finished a literary effusion of Benito Mussolini, written in his 26th year before he entered soberer realms. Printed in England and banned in Italy, the volume is a highly colored romance, a terrific piling up of magnificent words and a prodigal multiplication of metaphors, entitled: "Claudia Particella, or the Cardinal's Love." It is youthful imagination at fever heat, sparking murders, duels and hectic amours. Someone tells me Il Duce recalls it with a sturdy blush.

* * *

I can sympathize with his embarrassed reaction, having indulged similar wincing over an adolescent biography, unearthed in an old trunk. It, too, was turned out in the 20's, fancifully labeled: "The Love Affairs of Millicent Trask." Millicent was a good gal. That is, good and tough. But what tickled me most was the number of exclamations "Gadzooks!" That was likely mid-Victorian for "Nerts."

* * *

Speaking of "hot ladies," the newest belle of Harlem is the sepia Blanche Calloway, who, like her brother, Cab, conducts a jazz band with acrobatic fervor. On Lenox avenue, she is reputedly best dressed of the "bright skins."

* * *

A ribald lady novelist was on the rack at a Washington Square tea. "But what could you expect a goose to contribute to literature?" sniffed a panner. To which the puckish oldtimer, Oliver Herford, mildly offered: "Perhaps a quill!"

Hoover Meddling Wrecks Confidence

By Claude G. Bowers

FOR SHEER IMPUDENCE nothing recently has approached the scandalous action of the Hoover Administration in sending Irving Glover, Second Assistant Postmaster-General, to the Missouri Postmasters' Association to give orders to the postmasters to concentrate their efforts on the re-election of Mr. Hoover or resign. This Association presumably meets to advance the interest of the postal service. Mr. Glover no doubt went to Missouri at the expense of the American taxpayers on the theory that he went to discuss the departmental good. Instead he went there, at the behest of the Administration, to make a political speech and to make a threat. The eulogy of the President as a "peerless leader" was silly in the face of the facts. The declaration that the duty of a postmaster is to go out and battle for the President was false. But the climax of this vicious act, for which the Administration and its head stands responsible, is in this parting shot of the unique Mr. Glover:

> "I'll be back in Washington Monday and I'll be glad at that time to take the resignations of any of you postmasters who don't want to do it."

Support Hoover or Quit Posts!

Mr. Hoover has no opposition for the Republican nomination.

And yet, at this juncture, his spokesman in the Administration, traveling on Government money, campaigning for him, feels the necessity actually of threatening his own officeholders with discharge if they do not turn politicians and support Mr. Hoover. And the thought must occur to everyone that if even Federal officeholders have to be coerced into voting "Four More Years of Hoover" with "a chicken in every pot," there can be but little chance for his re-election.

And another thought occurs: when we are discussing ways and means of cutting the cost of government, it is time for the President to issue orders discontinuing the policy of sending his officeholders away from their jobs to political meetings at the expense of the taxpayers.

Silence Cure Urged on Hoover

Speaker Garner is right—it would be to the public interest if, for a season, the President would adjourn—that is, discontinue his propaganda statements and his unvarying plan of doing nothing on vital things until Congress has a plan, and then issuing statements in opposition to doing anything.

Garner is right when he says:

> "The President's statements have done more to discourage and freeze the confidence of the people than all other things put together. For the last six months, even since 1929, he has been jumping from one thing to another, speaking from a selfish rather than a patriotic standpoint. He started out in 1929 to thaw out public confidence, but it has not been restored. I suggest he try the opposite and keep quiet for thirty days and quit the propaganda."

The truth is that the President's "statements" sourly revive the memory of the misleading statements issued by the White House and the Treasury and the Department of Commerce, first creating the impression that there were sound values behind the crazy market prices during the madness, and second in belittling the state of unemployment even to the juggling of the census figures. These present statements cannot restore confidence, since confidence has been lost in his Administration.

Hoover's "Plans" Only Muddy Water

He has had no plan to put men to work—the only way prosperity can be restored.

When the House passed a tariff act, having no party significance, and merely providing for negotiations with other nations to lower the barriers against international trade, he vetoed it.

There can be no restoration of prosperity until international trade is restored through just such means as the House bill provided—and the President refuses to lift his finger to that end.

And there can be no restoration of prosperity until domestic trade is revived by restoring the purchasing power of millions of the jobless by furnishing them with jobs; and that idea never has occurred to Mr. Hoover.

But when the Democrats in Congress let it be known that they are planning to get behind a prosperity loan—he issues a statement submitting another "plan"—merely to muddy the waters.

Congress Must Act, Despite Hoover

If the President still lingers over the ticker tape of the stock market and ignores the lengthening procession of the unemployed, Congress must go ahead. We have had enough market-minded statesmanship—enough to prostrate a nation. The time has come to do something for trade.

And the Democrats in Congress should do that something through a prosperity loan to restore men to the purchasing class; and if the President vetoes that plan to restore domestic trade with the aid of Republicans in Congress, just as he vetoed a conservative plan to restore international trade, the people will know precisely what they are voting about in November.

The Prosperity Loan must come!

Just Folks

A Much Over-Rated Achievement

I shot a golf ball up and up,
It fell and landed in the cup.
My caddie said: "You've went an' gone
An' got yourself a hole in one."

Good friends came running from afar,
Shouting: "A lucky dog you are!
You'll get free stuff to drink and smoke,
In recognition of the stroke.

"Right to your door they'll carve a trail
With sarsaparilla, ginger ale,
Golf balls and clubs and sweaters, too,
For holes in one they always do!"

Unto my sorrow now I find
The ad boys are no longer kind;
Instead of goods and silver plate,
They send a nice certificate.

No ginger ale; no cigarettes;
No reading lamps or smoking sets
Are given now for holes in one,
The good old days are dead and gone.

The hole in one you strive to make
Must now be done for virtue's sake
And mention in some book next fall.
But that is absolutely all!
